preceding paragraph. The organization is the most powerful among the lower classes in Macao, having a membership of 200, made up largely of water front coolies. All thieves, pickpockets and swindlers who prey upon new arrivals in Macao must have the tacit consent of the Lien I Association in order to operate in safety. The Macao Government has used the Association as a subsidiary agency for the maintenance of order in the city. Gate-keepers of theaters and other places of amusement are often recruited from the Lien I membership. The president, CH'EN Ch'eng, defected to the Chinese Communists in 1948 and was in charge of liaison with the Communists in Chungshan District. The Association became a headquarters for Communists from Chungshan when they visited Macao, and began to serve as a cover for their activities.
