1. Pietro Nenni's trip behind the Iron Curtain is believed to have been made for the purpose of negotiating for the formation of a special section within the Cominform that would coordinate the activity and organization of the Socialist Parties in the satellite countries, particularly in the West. His cover as Director of the World Peace Committee was only used as a blind.
2. Nenni, in fact, told the leaders in the Cominform at Budapest about his Party and his personal experiences and pointed out that he believed the Party should be the guiding light of other Socialist groups. The President of the section would be Zdenek Fierlinger, head of the Czechoslovakian group, and Nenni would be the Vice - President.
3. The Cominform will doubtlessly create this section to make a more efficient group of the Western Socialist Parties and will give them financial support.
