1. When the Polish troops from Ciechanow (R 53/K 76) returned to their post from the 1950 fall maneuvers, they were marching in the following order: a sedan with officers; three soldiers on horseback; several units on foot, with each unit being led by an officer; a main body of mounted troops; horse-drawn covered supply vehicles; and about 10 trucks, which carried from 2 to 10 soldiers each and towed some field kitchens. The number of soldiers could not be determined. However, the mounted troops considerably outnumbered the soldiers on foot. All troops, both on foot and on horseback, marched six abreast. No guns or other heavy weapons were noticed. [REDACTED] the unit in Ciechanow was the 11th Regt, and [REDACTED] the soldiers wore visor-type caps with yellow-brown bands. *

25X1A* [REDACTED] Comment. Based on this information and previous reports, it appears that the unit concerned may actually have been a cavalry unit. It can therefore be assumed that a cavalry regiment or brigade was located in the Plock-Ciechanow area at least until February 1951. [REDACTED]
