1. The following units were seen moving into the barracks installation on the eastern perimeter of Sorau, on the south side of the road to Sagan (O 52/B 26), when they returned from the 1950 fall maneuvers:

L01/B

An artillery unit. Twelve artillery pieces of 100 to 120 mm, towed by trucks, were repeatedly observed with the unit. The guns had two wheels with rubber tires and mounted a barrel, which measured about 4 meters from breechblock to muzzle. * The personnel of the unit were issued new uniforms and caps with red bands in the fall of 1950.  The unit was last observed in the installation in early 1951.

An artillery unit, apparently an AT artillery battalion. The unit was organized into 3 batteries with motorized guns of about 100 mm, which were low built, had 2 dual tires and mounted an unusually long barrel. The personnel of this unit were also issued new uniforms and caps with red bands in the fall of 1950. The unit was last observed in the installation in December 1950.

A motorized infantry unit. The unit was last observed when it moved into the installation upon its return from the 1950 fall maneuvers. ***

2. The military post hospital was established in the former insane asylum in the northeastern sector of Sorau. The UB (Security Police) office was located in a reconstructed former private building on a side street of former Bahnhofstrasse, 400 to 500 meters northwest of the railroad station. A Militia office was located in a former private building on the west side of the Ring.

- 25X1A *  Comment. Possibly Soviet 122-mm howitzers.
- 25X1A   Comment. This information confirms a previous report, according to which the units in Sorau, in the fall of 1950, were furnished with new grey-blue uniforms, but retained the red cap band, which is indicative of units assigned to a mechanized or tank division. See  25X1A.
- 25X1A   Comment. This report substantially confirms previous information on the occupation of the barracks installation on the road to Sagan by motorized infantry and motorized artillery troops. See  25X1A. The 11th Mecz Div is carried in Sorau. The units mentioned in the present report are probably the artillery regiment, a mechanized regiment and the AT artillery battalion of this division. The AT artillery battalion is apparently equipped with Soviet 100-mm AT guns. A report of January 1951 [REDACTED] that, in addition to these units, an SP artillery unit and an armored reconnaissance unit, which may belong to the mechanized regiment, were quartered in another section of the barracks installation.
