1. The overall industrial economy of Hungary was controlled by Section V of the Ministry of the Interior. This section was established originally to control production and general economic matters. Later, its functions included the quantitative and qualitative control of all finished products. Under this section, some 30 separate sub-sections co-operated closely with the relevant ministry responsible for the industry concerned.
2. At the beginning of 1952, this section was withdrawn from the Ministry of the Interior and became independent. A Soviet engineer, Vladimir Gorelkin, took charge of it and, became Chief Commissar and the Head Adviser on Hungarian industrial production matters. All the important sub-sections and sub-groups of Gorelkin's office are now controlled by Soviet heads.
3. By [] order of the Council of Ministers, this former "Section V" was specially authorized to "carry out all measures to ensure that the Hungarian industry fulfils its Five Year Plan".
