1. In early May the Chinese Communists were operating radar stations at points YD-310633 near Kurhae-ri (125-38, 38-30) (YC-3064) and YD-282550 near Chaech'on-ni (125-36, 38-25) (YC-2755). Approximately 500 Chinese Communist soldiers with five ZIS trucks were attached to the Kurhae-ri station. Thirty Chinese Communist soldiers with four ZIS trucks were attached to the Chaech'on-ni station.
2. Both radar installations were encircled with straw ropes covering a circumference of about 700 meters. Two signs saying "No trespassing" and "Any intruders will be shot" were hung on the ropes. During the day two soldiers patrolled the area, and at night five guards armed with machine guns stood guard.
3. The radar equipment in both places was housed in tents which were covered with mud and grass. The antennae, rectangular in shape, protruded from the tents.
