Captain A. J. Henry, Jr., USN, Director
Department of Defense Computer Institute
Washington Navy Yard
Washington, D.C., 20390

Dear Captain Henry:

I want to thank you and the members of the staff and faculty of the Department of Defense Computer Institute for a most informative and pleasant week as a student in the Senior Executive Course. The organization of the course was, in my view, outstanding. I am afraid that I cannot concur with some of the statements of our "valedictorians" who felt that too much was given in too short a space of time, and that the emphasis on managerial responsibilities should have preceded the more detailed study of computer techniques. I found the matter entirely satisfactory.

Prior to attending your presentation, my association with computers and computer techniques was limited to a few publications and articles that I had read. While I do not profess to be in any way an expert now, I can say that I have a much better understanding of my role with respect to the use of computers in this Agency. In summary, I found the DODCI Senior Executive Course to be a thoroughly rewarding experience.

Sincerely,

SIGNED Alan M. Warfield
