

22 September 1977

Mr. Clifford D. May, Jr.
Director of Data Processing
Headquarters, Central Intelligence Agency
Washington, D. C. 20505

9/27/77

Dear Mr. May:

I thoroughly enjoyed and greatly profited from the fine briefing you gave me on Wednesday. It's quite clear that you and I have many similar problems to solve in the management area. I found it very helpful to talk with you and, I must say encouraging, to know that someone else is struggling as I am to get a solid handle on ADP. It was a great pleasure to meet you and I hope that you will be able to come out here soon so that we can bring you up to date on our facility and we can have another opportunity to exchange ideas.

Thanks again for giving me so much of your time.

Sincerely,

E. S. INCE
Rear Admiral, U. S. Navy
Deputy Director for Telecommunications
and Computer Services