C(1). Statement on the intelligence value of the above. (Stapled inside cover of Part One).

D. Five copies of an Intellofax Tape on the Soviet Budget. (In cello envelope).

D(1). Table showing monthly output of the Intellofax System. (In same envelope as D.).

2. One other item which I believe would be worth displaying is the Daily Request Book on the Intellofax System. This exists in only one copy, on my desk, and you should call for it the day of the presentation in order that it may be complete with the entries of the preceding workday. It is impressive because, on glancing through it, the reader sees (a) the immense variety of the research requests which must be answered, and (b) the considerable quantity of specific requests from Army, Navy, State, Air Force etc.

INTELLIFAX SYSTEM - WORKLOAD

FY 1949, 2nd half.....	6,834
FY 1950, 1st half.....	13,918
FY 1950, 2nd half.....	30,121
FY 1951, 1st half.....	27,094
FY 1951, 2nd half.....	49,197
FY 1952, 1st half.....	62,986
FY 1952, 2nd half.....	89,127
FY 1953, 1st half.....	119,354

Output in response to demand has increased in each half-year since the equipment was first installed, except for the first half of FY 1951 when the Agency was undergoing reorganization.

This equipment is unique. No other government agency, no university or library, and no commercial firm has anything of the sort actually in use. The System was developed by CIA(OCD) to meet the needs of CIA and the other intelligence agencies.
