RELOCATION OF ELECTRONIC WARFARE REGIMENT IN SYRIA

[Redacted]

25X1

INTRODUCTION

1. This report—designed to assist the Intelligence Community in maintaining current and accurate data on electronic warfare order-of-battle in Syria—discusses the operational deployment and probable garrison relocation of an electronic warfare regiment in Syria. One location map and one table are included. [Redacted]

DISCUSSION

2. Analysis of satellite and [Redacted] imagery has revealed that the electronic warfare regiment previously housed at two installations in southwest Damascus has incrementally vacated these garrisons since April. Elements of the regiment have been deployed in support of the SA-5 complexes at Hims and at Dumayr and in support of Syrian forces along the Golan Heights and in Lebanon. The remaining regimental elements have been relocated to Damascus SAM Site A15-3 55, on the southeastern side of Damascus. The electronic warfare regiment consists of a communications jamming battalion, previously garrisoned at Damascus Southwest Electronic Vehicle Facility 2 [Redacted], and a radar jamming battalion, previously garrisoned at Damascus Southwest Electronic Vehicle Facility 1 [Redacted]

IMAGERY ANALYST'S COMMENTS

6. Elements deployed to Anjar, Batrunah, Tall Ash Shaar, and Tall Ash Shams provide protection along the western flank of Syria, while elements near Hims and Dumayr provide point defense for the SA-5 complexes. The relocation of both radar and communications jamming equipment to Damascus site 55 suggests that this site may be the new home garrison for the electronic warfare regiment. [redacted]
