POLITICAL DEMOCRACY IN THE UNITED STATES

PRINCIPLES

1. Supremacy of the Constitution as the law of the land and the obligation of the Government to enforce it.
2. Obligation of the Government to hold its authority within the limits set by the Constitution and the laws.
3. Right of the states to be dominant in their own field, subject only to the Constitution.
4. Right of the Government to protect itself against those who endanger it or attempt to change the system by revolution.
5. Changes in Government personnel and organization only through regular constitutional methods.
6. Supreme authority of the citizens expressed through regularly scheduled elections.
7. Right of every legally qualified citizen to vote.
8. Right of every voter freely to express his choice.
9. Right of minority groups to oppose the majority which is in power.
10. Right of every citizen to seek any office for which he is legally qualified.
11. Right of citizens, individually or in groups, to petition the Government for correcting injustices.
12. Separation of church and state.

ACHIEVEMENTS

- * A democracy which has worked effectively for 170 years.
- * Changing of Government by peaceful and legal means to fit new needs.
- * Acceptance of and respect for the decisions of the Supreme Court.
- * Popular control over state and local government through initiative, referendum, and recall.
- * Peaceful acceptance of changes in Government's powers, organization, and personnel by all political groups.
- * No ruling class—officials drawn from all walks of life.
- * No governmental interference with activities of minority groups except for the security of the Nation.
- * Widening of the suffrage until it includes most men and women.
- * Constant improvements to protect voting rights.
- * Constant improvement in election procedure.
- * Full and free discussion of issues and candidates.
- * Constant improvement of methods for training citizens.
- * Increased efficiency of public employees through the Civil Service.
- * Our form of government voluntarily copied by other peoples
