TITLE: A marine cargo handling device. Class 65, No. 176810

SOURCE: Byulleten' izobreteniy i tovarnykh znakov, no. 23, 1965, 88-89

TOPIC TAGS: cargo, water traffic

ABSTRACT: This Author Certificate presents a marine cargo handling device for unloading unitized cargo from a hold to the deck. The device includes a two-chain palm elevator which works in conjunction with a belt conveyor (see Fig. 1). It reduces the dimensions of the cargo handling equipment and eliminates from the deck the superstructure over the cargo hold. The belt conveyor is pivoted under the deck so that, in a working position, it is in an inclined position. One end of the conveyor extends above the deck through a deck hatch which is offset in relation to the cargo hold. The conveyor in its nonoperating state is positioned
