

BIOGRAPHICAL STATEMENT

Richard C. Marston

Professor Marston is an Associate Professor of Finance and Economics at the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania and a Research Associate of the National Bureau of Economic Research in Cambridge, MA. He received an A.B. degree from Yale University in 1966, a B. Phil. degree from Oxford University (Balliol College) in 1968, and Ph.D. degree in Economics from MIT in 1972. His principal professional interests center on international monetary economics - exchange rate arrangements, national economic policies and international coordination. He has been a consultant to the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, the U.S. Treasury Department, and several private corporations, and has served on the editorial boards of the Journal of International Economics and the Journal of International Money and Finance. He has received fellowships from the German Marshall Fund, the Council on Foreign Relations, the IBM Corporation, the National Science Foundation, and the Rhodes Trustees, and has held visiting appointments at the London Business School and the Ecole Supérieure des Sciences Economiques et Commerciales in Paris.

BIOGRAPHIC RESUME

Dr. Riordan Roett

Dr. Riordan Roett is Professor of Political Science and Director of the Latin American Studies Program at SAIS, as well as Director of the Center of Brazilian Studies. He received his B.A., M.I.A. Certificate in Latin American Studies, and Ph.D. degrees from Columbia University. Dr. Roett has done considerable research in Latin America and has received a number of fellowships that have enabled him to do field research on the political development of Brazil, Paraguay, Uruguay and Argentina. These fellowships include: Fulbright Scholar Fellowship, National Defense Education, Post-doctoral Fellowship from the Center for International Studies, Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Vanderbilt University, research grants, Collaborative Research Training Fellowship (Foreign Area Program) and a Post-doctoral Research Grant from the Social Science Research Council.

Dr. Roett began teaching in 1967 as an Assistant Professor of Political Science at Vanderbilt University where he served as Associate Director and Acting Director of the University's Center for Latin American Studies until 1973. At Vanderbilt, he received two awards for excellence in teaching. He is the author of The Politics of Foreign Aid in the Brazilian Northeast (1972); Brazil in the Sixties (editor and co-author) 1972; Brazil: Politics in a Patrimonial Society, 1973, 1976; and Brazil in the Seventies, editor, published in the United States in 1976 and in Brazil in 1978. Other publications include: "Brazilian Foreign Policy: Options for the 1980s," in T. C. Bruneau and Philippe Faucher, eds., Authoritarian Capitalism: The Contemporary Economic and Political Development of Brazil (1981); "Brazil and the Inter-American System," in Tom J. Farer, ed., The Future of the Inter-American System (1979); "Authoritarian Paraguay: The Personalist Tradition," (with Amparo Menedez-Carrion), in H.J. Wiarda and H.F. Kline, eds., Latin American Politics and Development (1979); "The Political Future of Brazil," in W. Overholt, ed., The Future of Brazil (1979); and "Brazil Ascendant: International Relations and Geopolitics in the Late 20th Century", Journal of International Affairs, (1975).

Dr. Roett served as 1978 President of the Latin American Studies Association (LASA). Other professional activities include Vice President, Board of Trustees, LASPAU (Latin American Scholarship Program of American Universities); Chairman, National Targets Panel for Latin America, National Council on Foreign Language and International Studies, Member, Commission on United States-Brazil Relations; Member, The Doherty Foundation's Dissertation Fellowship Selection Committee, Princeton, New Jersey; and Chairman, Emergency Committee to Aid Latin American Scholars (ECALAS) of the Latin American Studies Association. Dr. Roett is a member of the Council on Foreign Relations, Inc.

Robert A. Scalapino

Robert A. Scalapino was born in Leavenworth, Kansas. He received his B.A. degree from Santa Barbara College and his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from Harvard University. Since 1949 he has taught in the Political Science Department of the University of California at Berkeley, and served as its chairman for a regular term during 1962-65. He is currently Robson Research Professor of Government, Director of the Institute of East Asian Studies, and editor of Asian Survey, a scholarly publication.

Professor Scalapino has been the recipient of a number of research grants under such auspices as the Guggenheim Foundation, Social Science Research Council, National Endowment for the Humanities, Luce Foundation and numerous others. He has written over 200 articles and more than 14 books or monographs on Asian politics and U.S. Asian policy. His most recent works include Asia and the Major Powers (1972), American-Japanese Relations in a Changing Era (1972), Elites in the People's Republic of China (editor and contributor, 1972), Communism in Korea (two volumes, with Chong-Sik Lee, 1972, for which they received the Woodrow Wilson Award for the best book published in 1973 on government, politics or international affairs), Asia and the Road Ahead (1975), The Foreign Policy of Modern Japan (editor and contributor, 1977), The United States and Korea--Looking Ahead (1979), "Asia" in The United States in the 1980s (1980), and "China and Northeast Asia" in The China Factor (1981).

He has traveled extensively in Asia, the Middle East and Africa, having made over forty trips in all, the most recent in the summer of 1981. He has made four trips to the People's Republic of China--on the last trip as a visiting lecturer at Peking University in the spring of 1981. He has visited the Soviet Union on six occasions, the latest as head of the American delegation to the Fourth American-Soviet Conference on Asia at Tashkent in September 1981.

Professor Scalapino is a Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, and has served as a consultant to many civic groups, foundations and government agencies. He serves on the Board of Directors of the National Committee on U.S.-China Relations (of which he was the founder and first chairman). He is Chairman of the East Asia National Targets Panel for the National Council on Foreign Language and International Studies, and of the American Advisory Committee for the Translation Service Center (sponsored by the Asia Foundation) in Tokyo.

He recently served on the Board of Directors of the Asia Society's China Council, and on the International Research Council of the Georgetown University Center for Strategic and International Studies. He is also a member of the National Fellows Board of the Hoover Institution, the Nominating Committee of the Council on Foreign Relations, the Research Advisory Council of Pacific Forum (Honolulu), and numerous other editorial boards and committees for education and government.

10/22/81

BIOGRAPHICAL STATEMENT

of

Harold K. Jacobson

Dr. Jacobson is Professor of Political Science and Program Director in the Center for Political Studies of the Institute for Social Research at the University of Michigan. Jacobson received his A. B. degree from the University of Michigan and his Ph. D. from Yale University. He has been a member of the faculty at Michigan since 1957, and he was chairman of the Department of Political Science at Michigan from 1972-1977. His principal areas of interest are international organization and politics and United States foreign and military policy. His most recent book is Networks of Interdependence: International Organizations and the International Political System (1979). He is also author, co-author or editor of five other books and many articles in professional journals. He is President-elect of the International Studies Association and a member of the Council of the American Political Science Association. Jacobson is also a member of the Board of Directors of the United Nations Association of the United States of America and a member of the U.S. National Commission for UNESCO. He is a member of the editorial boards of International Organization, the International Studies Quarterly, and the American Journal of International Law.

BIOGRAPHICAL STATEMENT

OF

Leon D. Epstein

Dr. Epstein is Hildale Professor of Political Science at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. He received his B.A. degree from the University of Wisconsin-Madison in 1940 and his doctorate from the University of Chicago in 1948 after military service in World War II. His research has chiefly concerned the comparative study of parties and politics in Western democratic nations, most specifically the United States, Britain, Australia, and Canada. Work in this field has included time in Britain and Australia. He has also written about British foreign policymaking processes and about British responses to American policies. Apart from books and articles in the comparative politics field, Dr. Epstein is the author of a book on the external and internal governmental relations of a state university. It was partly a product of administrative experiences as a department chairperson and as the Dean of the College of Letters and Science (U.W.-Madison), 1965-69. Dr. Epstein is a past president of the American Political Science Association, the Midwest Political Science Association, and the British Politics Group. He was a member of the Board of Directors of the Social Science Research Council and he is a Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. Research fellowships have included awards from Guggenheim, Wilson Center, Center for Advanced Study in the Behavioral Sciences, S.S.R.C., Fulbright, Rockefeller Foundation, Australian National University, and the Wisconsin-Helsinki Exchange. Dr. Epstein received an honorary D. Litt. from the University of Warwick (England), 1980.

IREX International Research & Exchanges Board
655 Third Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10017

BIOGRAPHICAL STATEMENT

Allen H. Kassof

Allen H. Kassof is Executive Director of IREX, the International Research and Exchanges Board. IREX is the principal U.S. non-governmental organization supervising exchanges and communication in the social sciences and humanities with Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union, and plays a leading role in the training and preparation of U.S. specialists on the area.

Dr. Kassof graduated from Rutgers University in 1952, and received the PhD in sociology from Harvard University in 1960. He also studied in the Harvard Soviet Program, and participated in the Russian Research Center's Refugee Interview Project. He was a professor and dean at Princeton University before coming to IREX, and in recent years served as a member of the President's Commission on Foreign Language and International Studies, as well as the first director (while on part-time leave from IREX) of the National Council on Foreign Language and International Studies. While at the Council he organized the Task Force on National Manpower Targets for Advanced Research on Foreign Areas.

Dr. Kassof is the author of a number of books and articles on Soviet society, a member of the Council on Foreign Relations, and was appointed by the Secretary of State as a U.S. delegate to the Hamburg Scientific forum preparatory to the Madrid Helsinki meeting. He is a trustee of the National Council for Soviet and East European Research, of the Center for Applied Linguistics, and is a member of the academic council of the Kennan Institute for Advanced Russian Studies.

Cyril E. Black

Cyril E. Black is Professor of European History and Director of the Center of International Studies at Princeton University. He has also been associated with the Department of State, the National War College, and the Ford Foundation. His teaching and research interests include Russia and Eastern Europe, modernization studies, and comparative history. His recent publications include, as editor and coauthor, The Transformation of Russian Society: Aspects of Social Change since 1861 (1960); The Dynamics of Modernization: A Study in Comparative History (1966); and, as coeditor and coauthor, The Future of the International Legal Order (4 volumes, 1969-1972); and coauthor, The Modernization of Japan and Russia (1975), and The Modernization of China (1981).