Dear Bill,

I would like to bring to your attention the interests of a fine young man who worked as a Research Assistant for me at REPUBLICANS ABROAD. [redacted] who did an outstanding job for us, has an excellent background in International Relations having studied at the London School of Economics and John Hopkins School for Advanced International Study. [redacted]

[redacted] proved valuable experience.

For some time [redacted] has been interested in a career overseas with the Agency, particularly in the area of Eastern Europe or the Soviet Union. [redacted] is very knowledgeable about Eastern Europe from his academic background and his work as a consultant to [redacted]

STAT

Previously, I wrote a letter to your Congressional Relations Dept. which was then forwarded to Agency Personnel with whom [redacted] had already been in contact. [redacted] says that personnel originally termed him overqualified for a job in Central Reference and said later he was underqualified for other positions. In fact, he now reports they have lost his file at last direct contact.

I would very much appreciate your arranging for someone at the Agency to give [redacted] an interview so that he may have due opportunity to present himself. Thank you for any help you might offer.

Best regards,
