NOTE FOR: Angus MacLean Thuermer, Assistant to the Director

SUBJECT : CIS Request for CIA Publications

ANGUS:

Suggest you call Patricia Johnson and acquaint her with the following:

(a) Unclassified CIA documents are available from DOCEX, Library of Congress, on a subscription basis and from Photoduplication Service, Library of Congress on an individual basis. DOCEX's services include subscription to all government publications released through them or a special subscription service for CIA publications only. Not all Agency publications released through DOCEX have statistical data. [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] Most of the economic reference aids, however, do have statistical data. Recommend she consult DOCEX directly about these services. DOCEX is open to any subscriber and is NOT LIMITED to official use only. Subscribers include university and college libraries mainly but also include Mobil, Singer, Government Business Worldwide, American Express, Industrial World, Boeing, Union Carbide, etc.

(b) CIA does not provide mailing list service to the public. The Agency uses established government distribution outlets for making its publications available to the public. These include DOCEX, NTIS of the Department of Commerce, GPO, and the Photoduplication Service of the Library of Congress. Almost all unclassified CIA publications are available through one of these outlets.

(c) The Agency does not publish a list of unclassified publications since most of what we produce is classified. We do have a list of items that have been released to date through DOCEX. This could be sent on a one-time basis but it is NOT AVAILABLE ON A REGULAR BASIS.

Mr. Angus Thuermer
Assistant to the Director
Central Intelligence Agency
Washington, D.C. 20505

Dear Mr. Thuermer:

In my position as an editor on the acquisitions staff of the American Statistics Index, I am responsible for contacting your agency to find out what documents of a statistical nature are available for inclusion in our index. The American Statistics Index is a library reference work, the purpose of which service is to abstract and index on a continuing basis virtually all the statistical publications of the Federal Government in order to enable researchers to better utilize this valuable, but very complex data. American Statistics Index is backed by a microfilming program which makes abstracted publications available on microfiche. I have enclosed a booklet explaining our publishing program and samples of the Index and Abstracts Supplements to the ASI 1974 Annual.

We are interested in obtaining appropriate CIA documents for inclusion in our service. To date, "Issues in the Middle East, Atlas," and the research aid, "People's Republic of China: International Trade Handbook," are the only publications of your agency which we have abstracted. We have been unable to obtain unclassified CIA documents through the Library of Congress Documents Expediting Service because it is for official use only. We have checked two years of back issues of GPO catalogues and have ordered a few documents, only to be informed that they were out of stock. One of those ordered, for instance, was "China Atlas."

I hope that there is some way we can obtain unclassified documents on a regular basis. Most of the Federal agencies have put us on mailing lists and we also make personal visits periodically to make sure that we have not missed anything.

I would appreciate it if you or your designee would call me at 654-8595 and I will try to answer any questions you may have. I am anxious for suggestions as to the best way to handle our acquisitions program with your agency. Also, would you please send us a list of unclassified CIA publications?

Thank you very much for your assistance.

Sincerely,

Patricia C. Johnson
Acquisitions Editor

A word about CIS

Congressional Information Service is a private publisher of master indexes to—and microfiche copies of—U.S. Government documents.

In 1970, CIS introduced the CIS/INDEX, the first abstracting and indexing service to provide a comprehensive awareness of the current information output of Congress.

Since then, CIS has expanded its coverage from Capitol Hill to the entire Federal Government; from current publications to those dating as far back as 1789; and from hard copy indexing to data bases on-line.

Government publications are a vital information resource

The U.S. Government invests hundreds of millions of dollars annually in the creation of public information. Federal documents are often the most basic and authoritative publications in their respective fields. Massive in volume and virtually infinite in variety, they are primary research materials for students and scholars, businessmen, lawyers, scientists, and government officials themselves.

Unfortunately, though, Government publications—and the important data they contain—are often very difficult to locate. Many of the most valuable Government documents are printed in small quantities, narrowly distributed, and inadequately cataloged and indexed.

This is where CIS comes in.

CIS helps you find needed information

Two of the most significant fields of current Government publishing activity are fully covered by CIS:

- Congressional documents—including all of the working papers of Congress, and . . .
- Federal statistical publications—including all of the statistical data issued by all of the branches and agencies of the U.S. Government

In each of these distinct fields of coverage, CIS provides comprehensive reference services which:

- Identify all relevant publications
- Catalog each publication in full bibliographic detail
- Describe the contents of each publication fully
- Announce new publications
- Index all of these publications in full subject detail

And, once this total awareness of available information has been provided . . .

You can go right to the source

Private citizens often find it difficult to obtain needed Government publications through traditional channels. And library reference is not always the solution, since there is literally no single library with a complete hard copy collection of Federal documents.

Only CIS, a private organization whose business it is to diligently collect government-produced information, has successfully mounted a total documents acquisition program, and . . .

CIS has created, through the proven advantages of microfiche, the most complete documents collections of their types in existence. From entire files, with automatic updating service . . . to individual documents as needed . . . CIS makes available not a fraction of what has been published, but virtually all of it.

These are complete reference systems

The researcher, without special expertise or expensive equipment, can go directly from his need for information on a particular subject to the page or pages in a document which contain that information . . . all in a matter of minutes.

The Working Papers of Congress

Hundreds of Congressional committees & subcommittees hear expert testimony, gather facts & commission special studies as a prerequisite to acting on legislation and overseeing Government operations. These findings are released in nearly 600,000 pages yearly that are the basic working papers of Congress.

The CIS/Index and CIS/Microfiche Library provide quick and detailed access to the information in these vital documents.

CIS/Index and Annual

AN ABSTRACTING AND INDEXING SERVICE

CIS covers all significant Congressional publications issued* by nearly 300 House, Senate, and Joint committees and subcommittees, including:

- Committee Hearings (with a separate abstract for each item of individual testimony)
- Committee Prints
- House and Senate Reports
- House and Senate Documents
- House and Senate Special Publications
- Senate Executive Reports
- Senate Executive Documents

*The only Congressional publications not covered are: the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD (which has its own index); reports and hearings on private bills; reports dealing with matters of internal "housekeeping"; documents which are reprints of publications previously made available in departmental editions.

Unique, multiple-access indexing makes the search for information remarkably easy . . .

The main index provides access to information by:

- Subjects of documents and hearings
- Subjects discussed by individual witnesses
- Names of witnesses and authors (corporate or individual)
- Affiliations of witnesses and authors
- Names of subcommittees
- Official and popular names of laws, reports, bills, etc.

Additional indexes provide cross-references by:

- Bill numbers
- Report numbers
- Document numbers
- Names of committee and subcommittee chairmen
- Titles (a new index)

Complete, concise CIS abstracts tell enough about the content of each publication so that a researcher can quickly determine whether or not it is likely to contain the specific information for which he is looking.

The abstracts also provide full bibliographic data to facilitate hard copy document acquisition, or swift retrieval from the CIS/MICROFICHE LIBRARY.

Coverage is prompt, as well as authoritative:

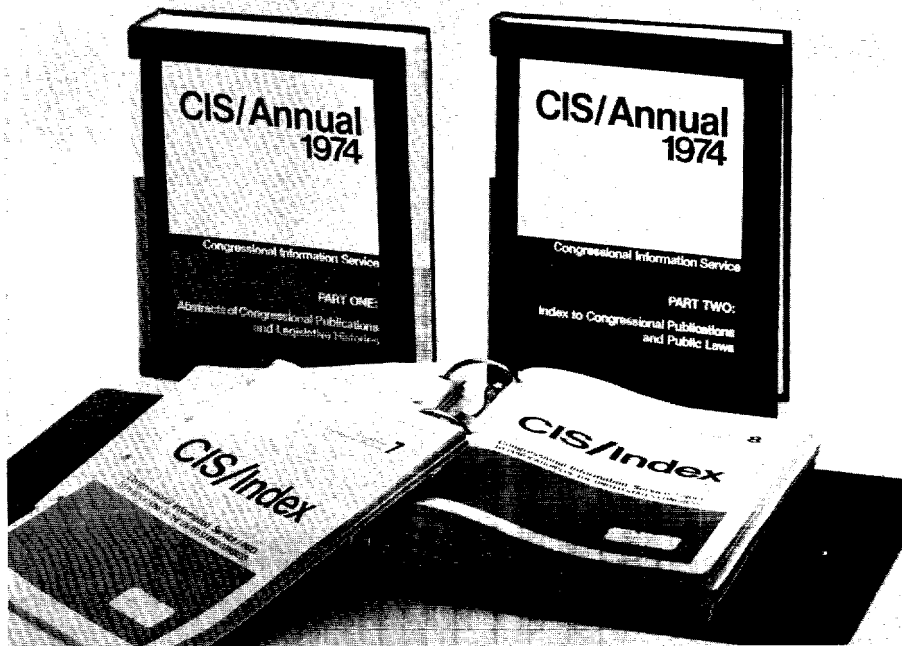

First, the CIS/HIGHLIGHTS, a newsletter sent monthly to all subscribers in advance of the CIS/INDEX, announces and briefly describes recently issued Congressional publications selected for their particular reference, research, or news value . . . also noting non-depository publications which are frequently in short supply and should be ordered promptly if desired.

Then, all relevant Congressional documents published during the previous month are fully abstracted and indexed in an issue of the CIS/INDEX . . . generally mailed to subscribers one month after the documents themselves have been issued.

Coverage is cumulated periodically

as an important convenience to librarians and researchers . . .

- Every quarter with a cumulative index to the documents covered the previous three months
- Every year, with the CIS/ANNUAL, a cumulation of both abstracts and index coverage—currently including more than 14,000 abstracts and 80,000 index references—encompassing the entire information output of Congress for a year is much more than a cumulation of a year's CIS/INDEX coverage. It takes on new meaning and added value for all who use Congressional publications as a source of information.

The CIS/ANNUAL

For the librarian and researcher—the CIS/ANNUAL is . . .

- A single source for full analysis of—and access to—the working papers of Congress issued during the entire year

And the ANNUAL has many special features, including:

- A guide to multi-volume hearings
- Added bibliographic data for the year's publications, such as Library of Congress card numbers and GPO monthly catalog entry numbers which were not previously available
- A convenient Title Index

Legal researchers—

for the first time, need look to just one reference service for legislative histories of all recently enacted Public Laws.

Using the CIS/ANNUAL, researchers can trace the development of a Public Law through previous Congresses back to 1970, since CIS provides, in its Legislative History Section, specific references to all Congressional documents in which the legislation or the need for it was discussed in any detail.

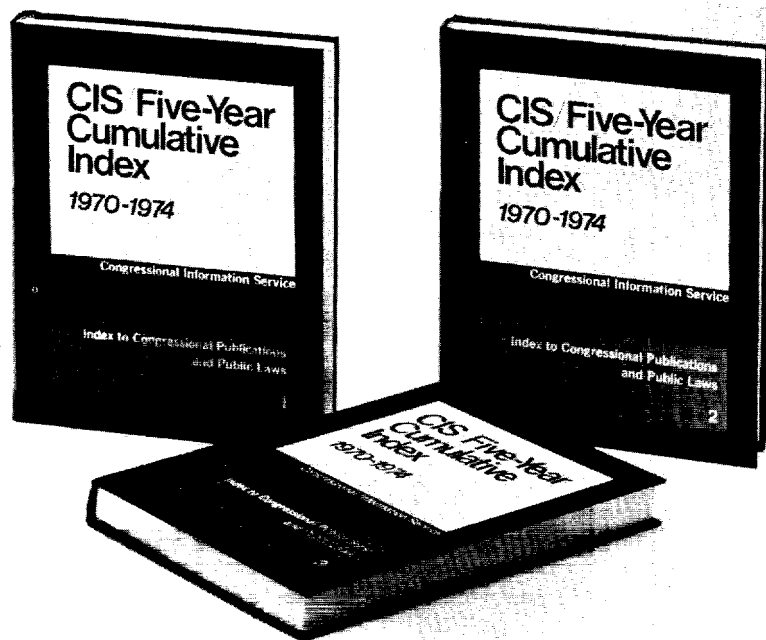

And when a researcher is aware of a specific law, direct references based on CIS research provide access to information by the:

- Name or title of the act which became Public Law
- Bill number
- Public Law number

Even if a researcher does not have specific knowledge of an existing law, information on any law pertaining to a particular subject is easily found in the index to the:

- Subject of either the act or one of its significant parts

CIS/ Five-Year Cumulative Index

This is a carefully-edited, cumulative index to Congressional publications of 1970 through 1974, for use with the CIS/ANNUAL Abstracts volumes for those years.

Features include:

- Single "look-up"
Now, researchers need refer to just one index—rather than to five different ones—for detailed access to information issued by Congress since 1970
- Space-saver
The cumulative index replaces the CIS/ANNUAL Index volumes published to date

CIS/Microfiche Library

A CURRENT AND RETROSPECTIVE MICROFICHE SERVICE

This is the most complete collection of Congressional hearings, prints, reports, documents, and special publications that exists anywhere.

The collection contains more of the working papers of Congress than can be found at the Library of Congress, the library of the Government Printing Office, or any other library or institution in the world.

Here's one of the most cost-effective investments in basic research materials that a library can make.

• It's economical to acquire:

The complete microfiche collection annually includes nearly 3,000 titles totaling approximately 600,000 pages—at a cost of only about a dollar per title for these basic research materials.

• It's economical to maintain:

Initially, the CIS/MICROFICHE LIBRARY represents excellent value. But also, as time goes on, subscribers will not incur the considerable added costs of maintaining a hard copy collection—such as those of binding and shelving.

• It's economical to use:

Locating documents in a hard copy collection can sometimes be a laborious and time-consuming task. But now, librarians and researchers can have at their fingertips a fully cataloged and indexed microfiche collection which is designed for quick retrieval of individual documents.

The microfiche arrive within a month after the INDEX, and are already arranged in the same sequence as the CIS document abstracts, with pre-printed identifying information on the "header" of each fiche.

CIS/Congressional Bills on Microfiche

A CONTINUING, RETROSPECTIVE MICROFICHE SERVICE

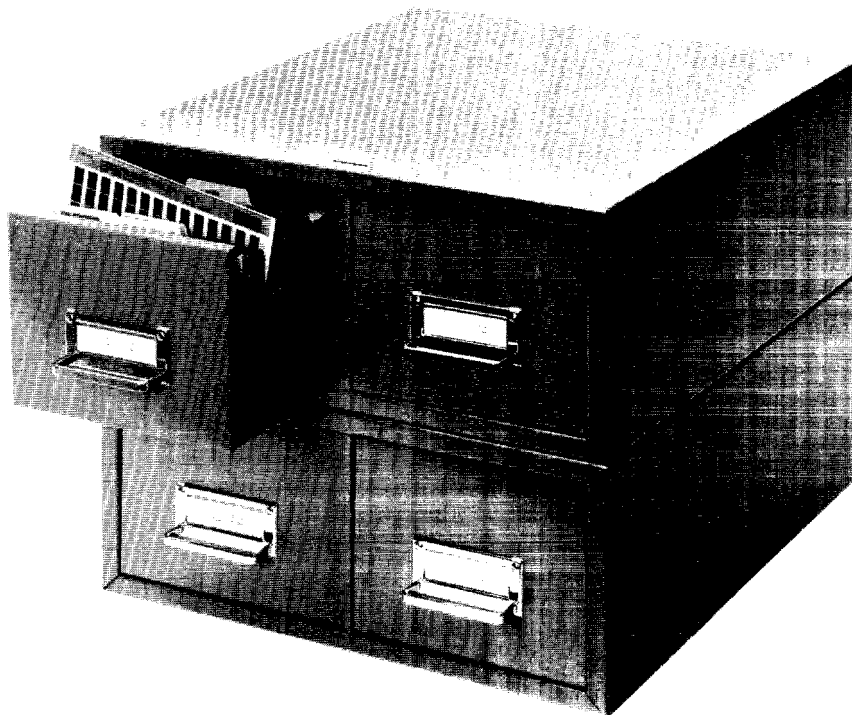

This is the most complete collection of House and Senate Bills, Resolutions, and Public Laws that exists anywhere--

Currently, more than 35,000 measures, amendments, and revisions are introduced and printed by a single, two-year Congress. CIS films from a variety of sources -- as needed -- to insure that every document is included in the microfiche collection.

There are many advantages offered by this service:

- Bibliographic control
Individual collections, by Congress, are published in their entirety and sent to subscribers with bills already filed in numerical sequence . . . thus eliminating the preparatory work normally required to get documents into use
- Economy and efficiency
There are no storage problems, and virtually no maintenance problems, such as that of the costly binding of hard copy collections each year

- Easy access
Any bill on which there was a hearing or report can be approached through the many index cross-references found in the CIS/INDEX and ANNUAL
For a greater understanding of the documents in the collection, appropriate issues of the CIS/ANNUAL provide full legislative histories of each Public Law

CIS/BILLS ON MICROFICHE Services available--

Step 3

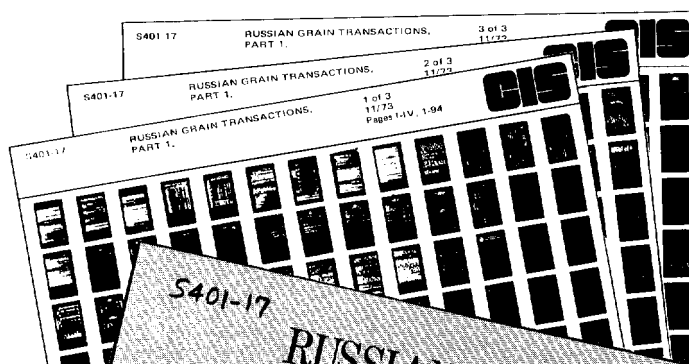

Retrieve the publication

If you have access to a CIS/MICROFICHE LIBRARY collection, the CIS accession number will lead you directly to the correct microfiche. (Using this total reference system, it takes only minutes to go directly from your need for information to the page or pages in the document containing that information.)

Or, to refer to the document in hard copy form, the CIS description contains all of the bibliographic information you need to locate the publication in a library. In fact, many libraries arrange their Congressional documents according to CIS accession numbers, which further aids document retrieval. And, if the library uses Superintendent of Documents Classification Numbers, you will find this number at the beginning of the document abstract.

If the library does not have the document in its collection, notes on its availability from the issuing source are included in the CIS description.

Note: individual documents will soon be available through the CIS/ASI DOCUMENTS ON DEMAND service. See page 31 for details.

Congressional Publications from America's Infancy to Modern Times

The US Serial Set is a basic collection of major historical significance, yet many libraries' hard copy sets have broad gaps and volumes in poor or even unusable condition. And, of course, many libraries have no Serial Set collection at all—& until now no simple means of acquiring one. However, libraries may now acquire the entire Serial Set, or individual parts of it—on silver halide, archival quality microfiche . . . with cumulative indexing.

CIS U.S. Serial Set on Microfiche 1789-1969

A MAJOR NEW MICROFICHE SERVICE

The Serial Set defined:

There is no simple definition for the term serial set. It identifies both the device for organizing congressional publications in an open-ended or serial scheme, and the publications themselves to which Congress has assigned serial numbers. Because the system did not come into full use before the beginning of the 15th Congress (1817), documents of earlier Congresses that were reprinted as part of the collection called the American State Papers have been given arbitrary numbers [01-038] and placed at the beginning of the set.

Also called the "Congressional series" or the "Congressional edition" and earlier called the "sheep set" after its distinctive bindings, the serial set includes executive agency and departmental reports and even non-governmental publications, as well as Congressional documents and reports. Not included are the Congressional Record or its predecessors and any committee publications not in committee reports. The House and Senate Journals appear continuously in the set up to the start of the 83rd Congress (1953), except for a brief period during the 54th Congress and the 1st Session of the 55th Congress (1895-97).

Depository and international exchange libraries have not—despite some misconception—always received the complete serial set under depository laws, and many publications that they have received have not been in serial set form.

CIS is micropublishing the entire serial set for the period preceding the first publication of the CIS/INDEX (1970)*.

Defined as every document to which Congress has assigned a serial number, the CIS collection includes:

1. All depository publications that appeared in distinctive serial bindings
2. Publications that were sent to depository and international exchange libraries, but not in serial set form
3. Publications that were never sent to these libraries under the depository laws even though serial numbers had been assigned to them
4. Publications within the AMERICAN STATE PAPERS that cover the period preceding the introduction of the serial numbering system

*CIS has been filming and indexing the serial set (with some minor exceptions) on a current basis since the start of the 91st Congress, 2nd Session. See CIS/MICROFICHE LIBRARY, page 10, for details.

Exercising rigid bibliographic control—and filming from a variety of sources as needed—the CIS US SERIAL SET ON MICROFICHE will be more inclusive than any single depository collection in existence.

Finding aids are comprehensive—

CIS is using a system of external and internal finding aids to make this microfiche collection considerably more accessible than the serial set has ever been.

• External:

The microfiche collection is being issued in conjunction with the CIS US SERIAL SET INDEX—an index that provides unprecedented access to the serial set. (Details appear on page 17.)

• Internal:

Information on the "header" of each fiche includes:

Title

Series category

Congress and session

Serial, volume, and fiche number

"Targets" appearing in index frames show report numbers at the beginning of each successive report.

Both headers and targets may be read without magnification. Researchers who have, in the past, experienced the difficulty of working with volumes that hold many short reports and have neither consecutive paging nor continuous running heads, should particularly welcome the convenience of eye-legible index targets that quickly locate individual reports. (See illustration on following page.)

• Used together . . .

The external and internal finding aids complement each other to make document retrieval more precise and efficient.

(Each index part covers the same portion of the serial set collection as a group of CIS microfiche.)

For its cumulated period of coverage, each part contains an easy-to-use, dictionary-style:

- Alphabetical index of title-derived subjects and names, with a separate . . .
- Alphabetical index of individuals or organizations cited in reports on private bills, and . . .
- In serial number order, a detailed shelf list, giving the exact location of all reports and documents, for quick retrieval in either hard copy or CIS microfiche

At last, it's possible to do research in the serial set in a simple and direct manner.

This massive indexing project will encompass hundreds of thousands of different titles, for which CIS expects to provide nearly 2-million index references. Therefore, it is no longer necessary to use a wide variety of reference tools which, as a whole, are inconsistent, cumbersome, and often inadequate. Now, access to the serial set is—

- Comprehensive
The thorough, multiple-access indexing system accommodates all basic research.
- Consistent
A sophisticated computer program has been designed to assist CIS editors in the creation of the index. Consistency of bibliographic presentation is insured by the application of a uniform set of indexing rules which will apply throughout the project.
- Convenient
For convenient and efficient research, each part is cumulated so that only a "single look-up" is required to cover a significant period.

The CIS SERIAL SET INDEX provides unparalleled access to a huge collection of basic research materials for—

- CIS US SERIAL SET ON MICROFICHE customers
- Federal depository libraries with complete or partial hard copy collections
- Any library or institution with a requirement for detailed indexing of the serial set . . . a reference resource of major historical significance

The Statistical Publications of the U.S. Government

Rarely is the need for convenient access to data more acute than when dealing with statistics pertaining to America and its interests. CIS covers the most valuable source of such data, the Federal Government, and provides an awareness of—and access to—the statistical publications of the Executive agencies, Congress and other statistics-producing programs. The American Statistics Index and ASI Microfiche Library are companions in a total reference system that uniquely provides bibliographic control of a massive information resource.

American Statistics Index

AN ABSTRACTING AND INDEXING SERVICE

No matter what the field of interest, here is the best first step a researcher can take to answer statistical questions on America . . .

Only with ASI can you—

- Know exactly what data on a specific subject have been published—and where to find the publications
- Tell what the latest issue is in a time series
- Locate monographic materials that have not been indexed anywhere else at all
- Easily find bibliographic information through a variety of unique indexing systems that make research more accurate, all-encompassing, and uncomplicated

ASI puts the researcher in touch with virtually the full statistical output of the U.S. Government by providing complete and comprehensive coverage of all . . .

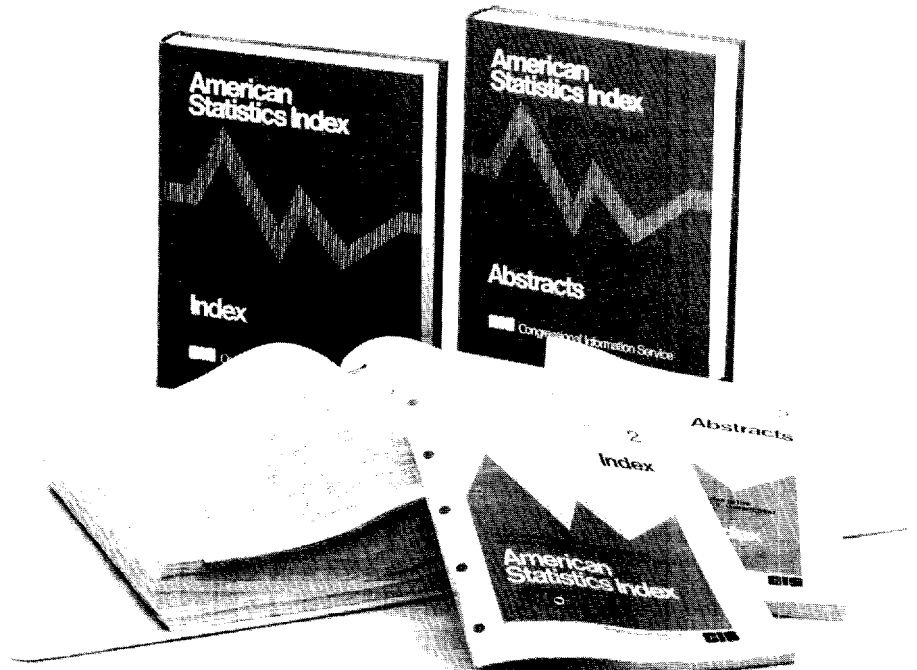

Subjects

Subject coverage is as broad as the Government's own national and worldwide interests

Sources

All significant Federal sources of statistics are covered, including:

- Major statistical agencies, which have as their primary function the regular collection, analysis, and publication of data in a specialized field or group of fields
- Analytic, research, administrative, and regulatory agencies, which produce statistical studies and series by making use of the data collected by major statistical agencies, or by collecting and publishing information out of their administrative and operating responsibilities
- Other statistical sources including Congressional committees and special commissions

Types of publications

All types, including:

- Periodicals, annuals, and biennials
- Special surveys and analytical reports
- Articles of a statistical nature appearing in selected journals
- Publications in series
- Statistical compilations of an encyclopedic nature
- Selected regional publications of the field offices of Federal agencies
- Annual reports and other publications of non-statistical agencies which contain relevant data
- Selected non-tabular materials that contain statistics or aid in the understanding of a statistical program, including methodological publications
- and much more

Multiple-access ASI indexing helps to pinpoint data through a specially-developed system of cross-references which includes:

Index by Subjects and Names—provides references not only to subjects and authors (individual and corporate) of publications, individual articles, and chapters, but also to the subjects of groups of tables and even individual tables

Index by Categories—is an ASI innovation which makes it possible to scan, in a single listing, all publications which contain breakdowns of data by:

- Geographic breakdowns: by census division, city, county, foreign country, outlying area, region, SMSA, state, and urban-rural
- Economic breakdowns: by commodity, Federal agency, income, industry, and occupation

- Demographic breakdowns: by age, disease, educational attainment, marital status, race, and sex

Index by Titles and Index by Agency Report Numbers—

provide quick access to documents and individual articles when the title or report number is known

For the added convenience of librarians and researchers, the ASI ANNUAL also includes:

Guide to Selected Standard Classifications—

which provides detailed outlines of the major standard classification systems used by various Federal agencies to arrange and present data . . .

- Census Regions and Divisions
- Outlying Areas of the U.S.
- Standard Federal Administrative Regions
- Farm Production Regions
- State Economic Areas
- Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas
- Cities with Population over 100,000
- Consumer Price Index Cities
- Standard Industrial Classification
- Census Industrial Classification
- Census Occupational Classification
- Standard International Trade Classification, Revised

Complete, concise ASI abstracts—give detailed information about the content of each publication so that a researcher knows whether or not it is likely to contain the specific data for which he is looking. The description includes:

- Subject matter covered by data
- Sources of data
- Time periods covered
- Geographical breakdowns
- Titles and page locations in a publication of individual tables and other pertinent data, when appropriate

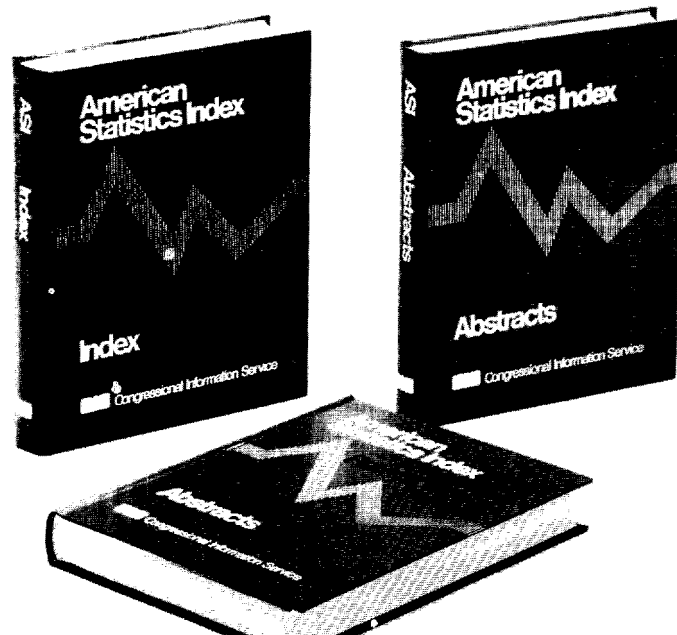

ASI also traces the existence of related data in other publications, and provides full bibliographic information. (See sample abstracts.)

Coverage is prompt and cumulative . . .

The ASI ANNUAL, current as of January 1 of the year issued, cumulates coverage of all relevant publications of the previous year.

ASI SUPPLEMENTS are published on a monthly basis, updating the annual and previous supplements by covering new statistical publications (and changes in earlier ones). A supplement is generally mailed five weeks after the documents it covers have been issued. The indexes to the supplements are issued monthly and cumulated quarterly.

ASI 1974 Annual & Retrospective Edition

This is a massive, special retrospective issue—current as of January 1, 1974 with complete coverage of all publications of the previous year, plus . . .

- Comprehensive coverage of virtually all significant publications of the past ten years or more . . .
- With particularly detailed coverage of publications issued in recent years.

Available for individual purchase and highly recommended for its authoritative coverage of publications issued since 1962 . . . this edition provides librarians and researchers with the only detailed control of — and access to — more than a decade's worth of significant Federal statistical documents.

Quotes & Comments

Sample Abstract

"The value of this finding aid for beleaguered searchers of pertinent government statistics is immediately apparent, while the clear instructions for use are admirable."

-Reference Services Review

"Statistics-how do you find U.S. Government statistical information? This is answered by one of the newest and best sources available to libraries and their patrons, the American Statistics Index."

"(It) provides the most valuable, complete, and continuous access to U.S. Government statistics."

"ASI contains all of the bibliographic information you or your patrons need to locate statistical information... also, this whole work could be used as an acquisition-cataloging tool in any library."

"I recommend the American Statistics Index for every library."

-Law Library Journal

"(There is) a continuity to the abstracts which makes it easy to read several abstracts and readily isolate the same type of information desired from each."

"The format of the book is clear and easy to use. I found myself browsing in the Abstract volume. This ASI makes statistics fun to use, instead of the chore they were before the Index."

-Reference Quarterly

"The only way truly to appreciate its magnitude and scope is to use it. While its cost is rather hefty, it is worth every penny in time saved by the researcher and librarians."

-Council of Planning Librarians Newsletter

"... reports from the field are all complimentary and appreciative. Recommended."

"... the Congressional Information Service's excellent American Statistics Index is certainly an outstanding reference tool which will serve... to unlock many 'buried' government statistics published in the myriad of government publications."

ASI Microfiche Library

A CURRENT AND RETROSPECTIVE MICROFICHE SERVICE

This is the most complete collection of the statistical publications of the U.S. Government that exists anywhere.

The Complete Retrospective Collection contains more than 15,000 titles, totaling 1.7 million pages. Each year, many thousands of new publications will be added automatically to this massive file.

ASI microfiche is a cost-effective alternative to hard copy:

It would be virtually impossible for any library to develop a hard copy collection as complete, or as economical to acquire, maintain, and use as the ASI MICROFICHE LIBRARY. The cost of documents on microfiche is low; maintenance and storage problems are minimal; and the fully cataloged and indexed microfiche collection is expressly designed for quick document retrieval.

Note—

- When you subscribe to an ASI MICROFICHE LIBRARY current service, you receive—each month—microfiche copies of all documents in your specified service that have been covered in a month's issue of ASI. The microfiche generally arrive within a month after the SUPPLEMENT, and are already arranged in the same sequence as the ASI document abstracts, with pre-printed identifying information on the "header" of each fiche.
- "Current service" is defined as an annual subscription covering the calendar year. All publications are shipped monthly except for some selected periodicals which are shipped quarterly.
- Retrospective collections are shipped in their entirety, with fiche arranged in correct sequence.
- Special microfiche selections are available either by subject, document type, or issuing agency. Further information may be obtained upon request.

AcCIS

ON-LINE ACCESS TO THE CIS AND ASI DATA BASES

CIS announces a new way to significantly improve the cost-effectiveness of your research.

Starting in February, 1975, the data bases from which the CIS/INDEX and AMERICAN STATISTICS INDEX are published will be electronically accessible with the aid of the computer facilities of the System Development Corporation (SDC).

This interactive, on-line information retrieval system, called AcCIS, provides for unprecedented access to —

- The working papers of Congress, with the CIS/INDEX data base, and
- The statistical publications of the U.S. Government, with the AMERICAN STATISTICS INDEX data base

What does this new accessibility mean to you?

The intrinsic value of the CIS and ASI data bases — which are renowned in their respective fields — are now greatly enhanced by their availability through the reliable SDC on-line system. (SDC already provides electronic access to dozens of other bibliographic files from both the public and private sectors, with approximately 10 million document citations in all fields.)

Complex and painstaking searches that might take hours by hand can now be done with computer assistance in minutes, or even seconds. . . with absolute precision and improved comprehensiveness.

The system can also save you time in other important ways. For example, you can order needed documents* quickly, and without paperwork, directly through the computer.

*Individual documents are available through the CIS/ASI DOCUMENTS ON DEMAND service. See page 31 for details.

How does the on-line service work?

AcCIS is a simple and direct computerized system . . .

- Equipment requirements
All the on-line user needs is an inexpensive computer terminal and coupler device, and a telephone. With these instruments, the user can communicate directly with the computer's information storage, processing, and retrieval system.

- Making the connection
To connect with the SDC computer from any terminal, the user simply dials a specified telephone number in his own city, or one nearby.

- Talking to the computer
Interaction between the computer and the on-line user is in natural language. The user types his inquiry on a terminal keyboard in plain English and within seconds the answer is displayed on the terminal. A variety of time-saving commands may also be used in instructing the computer to perform a basic or repetitive task.

This interaction between researcher and computer is a truly significant feature of the system. Of course, the computer responds quickly to simple queries and commands. And for complex research, "instant feedback" from the computer literally helps you refine your search as you make it, expanding or limiting your query to arrive at precisely the information you need.

- Basic training
To prepare personnel for the correct and efficient use of the on-line service, optional training programs are available on a modest cost basis. Initially, new users without previous experience in the SDC system will be provided with some free computer time.

To use AcCIS most efficiently, the user should also understand the data bases themselves. A basic knowledge of the scope and content of coverage provided by the CIS/INDEX and ASI is best achieved initially through familiarity with the printed indexes. (New on-line users, if not currently index subscribers, may subscribe on a convenient "trial" basis.)

- Off-line services
A variety of time- and money-saving services can be performed upon command, such as off-line printing of lengthy bibliographies or abstracts, or documents ordering.

- Service rates
Users pay only for the actual amount of service used. There are no minimum usage requirements or on-line subscription charges.

The basic rate for AcCIS is $120. per hour, or $2. per minute. Index subscribers will receive the reduced rate of $100. per hour. In addition, there is a standard telephone communications charge (currently $10. per hour) for use of the Tymshare network from the nearest entry point to the SDC computer.

At these rates, a typical search can cost as little as $10-$20.

Off-line printouts, with same-day mail-out service, may be ordered at 25¢/citation, if the user does not wish to receive the printout directly at the terminal.

Isn't this worth your careful consideration?

For full details, as well as a demonstration of how AcCIS can be used to meet your specific needs, please use the enclosed reply card.

Directory of Government Document Collections & Librarians

For the first time in many years—here is a complete and up-to-date directory which provides a full range of information about thousands of government document collections and institutions, agencies, and individuals concerned with document librarianship, publication, or related activities.

All libraries in the United States, its territories and possessions, that have been identified as having one or more collections of documents, have been included in the directory.

Eight comprehensive sections provide for detailed—but easy-to-use—presentation of important information:

Section I
Guide to Libraries, Collections, and Staff

The main entry for each library that collects government documents appears in gealphabetical order by state, city, and institution, and library within institution. Individual entries include basic library information (whenever applicable and available), such as: name of institution and library, other popular names; departments or divisions; address and telephone number; collection, depository, and staff information (including names, titles, and areas of responsibility for those working with documents).

A unique accession number assigned to each library aids the search for information from section to section within the DIRECTORY.

Section II
Library Index

An alphabetical listing, with accession numbers, of all libraries by institution and library name. When applicable, cross-references to other names for the same library are also given.

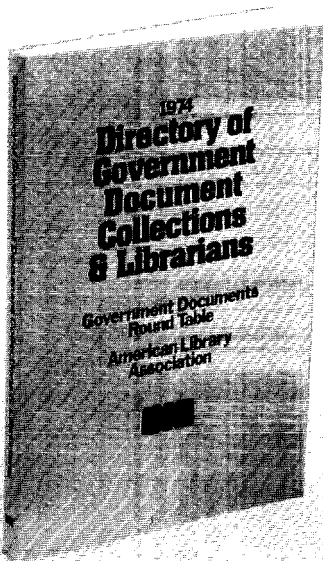

Section III
Document Collections Index

In three separate sub-sections—state, local, and international document collections are listed in gealphabetical order, by library. Accession numbers direct the researcher back to Section I for basic information.

(A Federal document sub-section is not included since almost every library listed in the DIRECTORY collects Federal documents.)

Section IV
Special Collections Index

This is an alphabetical listing of specific subject and agency (U.S., interna-

Nearly two hundred specific subject and agency terms, with cross-references, are included in this unique, "one-stop" listing of hard-to-find information. Subjects include, for example, American Indians, Criminology, Mineral Industries, and Women. Agencies include FAO, NASA, NATO, and UNESCO.

Section V

State Document Authorities

This is an alphabetical listing, by state, of agencies (and individuals) responsible for administering their respective state documents programs, for issuing state documents checklists, and for responding to correspondence relating to state documents.

Section VI

Library School Instructors, Government Documents

This is an alphabetical listing of all library schools (and instructors in government documents) in the United States and Canada.

Section VII

Library Staff Index

This is an alphabetical listing of more than 3,200 individuals in the library field whose names appear in the entries of Sections I, V, or VI. Following each person's name is the accession number which leads to the section and main entry in which this name appears.

Section VIII

Names to Know

A variety of useful "locator" listings providing information about key people in library associations or the U.S. Government who are involved in government document activities.

This new directory is highly recommended

For document users and collectors who need a comprehensive awareness of library resources, people, and activities concerned with government publications.

See enclosed Order Form for rate and ordering information.

A NEW SERVICE FOR INDIVIDUAL DOCUMENT ACQUISITION

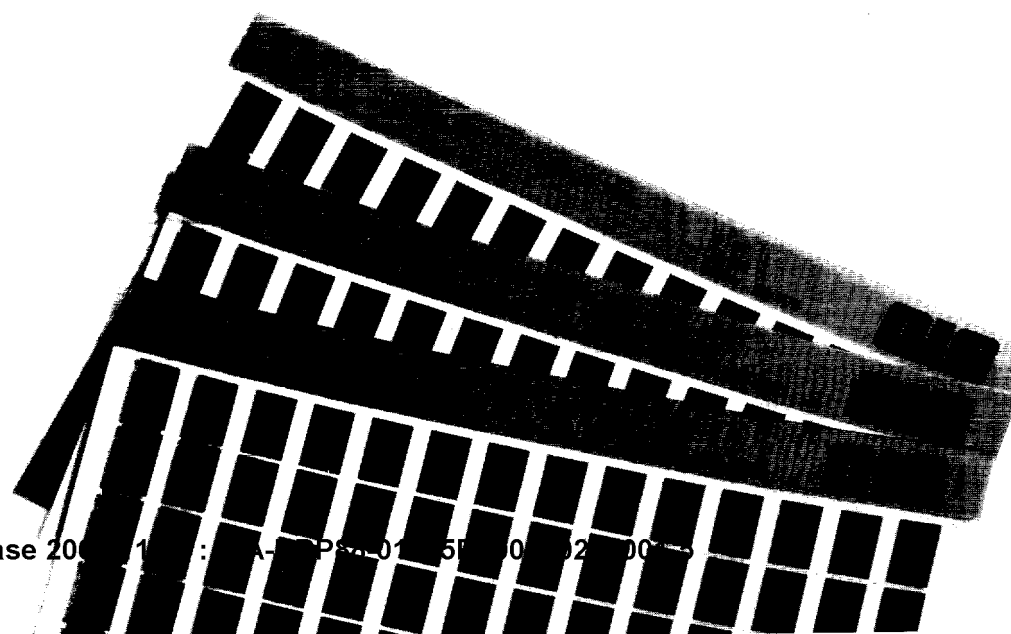

CIS has received an increasing number of requests for an "on demand" service that offers an easy, efficient, and economical way to purchase any individual document covered in any issue of the CIS/INDEX or AMERICAN STATISTICS INDEX.

In response to these requests, we are now making arrangements to provide such a service, which we hope to have in operation early in 1975. Planned features of the service include:

- Convenient order processing, with various payment plans, and minimum paperwork
- Every document available at all times
- Prompt delivery
- Reasonable prices

The basic format in which documents will be sold is 4" x 6" diazo microfiche. Assuming that the technical problems can be solved, paper copies will also be offered, at a price somewhat higher than microfiche.

If you are interested in receiving specific details on this service as soon as they become available, please use the enclosed reply card.

MICROFICHE

The following specifications and policies are applicable to the CIS/Microfiche Library, CIS/Congressional Bills on Microfiche, CIS US Serial Set on Microfiche, and ASI Microfiche Library.

Specifications—

- CIS microfiche conform to all applicable standards established by the National Microfilm Association and the American National Standards Institute.
- The fiche is a sheet of archival quality, silver halide film
- Measuring 105mm x 148mm (app. 4" x 6"), each fiche contains a maximum of 98 pages of documentation in negative polarity at a nominal reduction ratio of 24:1.
- Positive polarity, eye-legible headers on each fiche show pertinent bibliographic data.
- Fiche are stored at 100 per inch — or up to 9,800 pages of documents. (A four-drawer card file cabinet will, for example, hold an entire year's output of Congressional publications.)
- Permanent, pre-printed, eye-legible "headers" on each fiche show pertinent identifying data. Pre-printed, color-coded index tab cards are provided.
- CIS fiche are produced under stringent quality controls, with every care taken to insure that shipments arrive complete and free from defects.

General advantages of CIS microfiche collections—

- Complete
- Durable
- Portable
- Easy to use
- Compact
- Virtually maintenance-free
- A cost-effective alternative to hard copy collection development
- Quick retrieval of documents, and inexpensive duplication into hard copy with any standard reader-printer

Benefits of CIS microfiche services—

Besides the many characteristic advantages of microfiche, the CIS services, in particular, offer many distinct benefits.

- Current service:
 - Automatic shipment of complete collections — eliminating the expense and frustration of attempting to locate and acquire documents in hard copy. Generally, within about two months of their publication, subscribers will receive every document included in a subscription.
 - Virtually no preparatory work is required to get the documents into use. Usually, in less than an hour each month, the new microfiche can be easily filed in to the existing collection.
 - Microfiche are pre-cataloged to provide full bibliographic control. When subscribing to the CIS/INDEX or AMERICAN STATISTICS INDEX, as appropriate to your collection, you will automatically have a detailed, annotated catalog of — and index to — your microfiche.
- Retrospective service:
 - These massive, pre-cataloged collections are shipped in their entirety, filed in order, and ready for immediate use.

HOW TO USE ASI SUPPLEMENTS

The American Statistics Index (ASI) aims to be a master guide and index to the statistical publications of the U.S. Government. The service consists of an annual edition and monthly supplements. The most recent annual is the ASI 1974 Annual and Retrospective Edition, which is current as of Jan. 1, 1974. Publications issued since Jan. 1, 1974 are covered in the ASI 1974 Supplements.

COVERAGE OF THE 1974 ANNUAL

The ASI 1974 Annual and Retrospective Edition provides a detailed and comprehensive coverage of Federal Government statistical publications in print, as well as most significant publications issued since the early 1960's. When the American Statistics Index began publication with the ASI 1973 Annual, we confined our scope of coverage to social and socioeconomic statistics. The ASI 1974 Annual represents not only an updating and expansion of the coverage in the 1973 Annual, but also an extension of our coverage to the entire range of Federal statistical publications, including the important fields of business, economics, and natural resources. The 1974 Annual is retrospective in its coverage of all fields and fully supersedes the 1973 Annual.

PURPOSE OF THE SUPPLEMENTS

The ASI monthly supplements provide up-to-date information on changes in publications included in the ASI 1974 Annual and Retrospective Edition, and descriptions of new publications. In addition, wherever we have been able to locate older publications, which for one reason or another were not available at the time of publication of the ASI 1974 Annual, these have also been included.

As the name implies, the supplements are designed to be used as an adjunct to, not as a replacement for, the ASI 1974 Annual. A description of ASI coverage, information on how to use the indexes and abstracts, and a guide to selected standard classifications can be found in the 1974 Annual and should be consulted before using the supplements. As a matter of practice, any subject search should start with the ASI 1974 Annual, which will provide the basic references to available data, and proceed to the supplements which will indicate any updates, changes, and new material.

HOW ASI SUPPLEMENTS DESCRIBE AND INDEX PUBLICATIONS

Publications not previously described in the ASI 1974 Annual, receive complete summaries and indexing in the supplements, and are assigned separate unique ASI accession numbers.

New issuances, revisions, or updates of publications previously described in the ASI 1974 Annual are treated as follows:

Periodicals

All periodicals issued during the supplement's period of coverage are reviewed for consistency with content description given in the ASI 1974 Annual. Periodicals which remain substantially unchanged from the description provided in the ASI 1974 Annual are not re-abstracted or re-indexed in the supplement.

Periodicals which have a significant change, either in substantive coverage or in title or periodicity, are described briefly to note the nature of the change. The description carries the same ASI accession number as that assigned in the ASI 1974 Annual, and refers the reader to the Annual for further information about the publication. Subject and category indexing which indicate the added or deleted data are provided.

In cases where there have been extensive revisions to a periodical, a new full abstract and full indexing have been included in the supplement. The new abstracts and indexing serves as a replacement for the coverage in the ASI 1974 Annual.

Periodical articles issued during 1974 are individually abstracted and indexed if they present statistical information of apparent research value.

Issues of periodicals reviewed within the period of coverage of a given supplement are listed with annotation as to whether or not a new abstract was written to describe any changes in coverage from the ASI 1974 Annual.

Annuals and Biennials

Supplements provide full indexing and descriptions for all new issuances of annuals or biennials. For annuals and biennials which have in an earlier edition been described in the 1974 Annual, the same ASI accession number as that assigned in the Annual is used in the supplement, and the abstract and indexing replace that in the Annual.

Publications in Series

All newly issued publications within a series are abstracted and fully indexed. The same ASI accession number for the series is retained in the supplements, and the reader is referred back to the Annual for coverage of previous publications in the series. Publication titles and agency report numbers are individually indexed for quick reference to specific supplement abstracts.

Special and Irregular Publications

Full abstracts and indexing are provided for all special and irregular publications issued during the period covered by the supplement. Updates of earlier publications which have been covered in the Annual are generally given the same ASI accession number as their predecessor publication. References to related documents included in the ASI 1974 Annual are made where applicable.

Index by Subjects and Names

This index contains references to subjects, to corporate authors, and to individual authors of articles and publications where the author's name appears on the title page.

References to individual items within a tabular breakdown (e.g., data about a particular State in a table that is broken down State-by-State) have been included only on a very selective basis. For complete references to information of this kind, please use the Index by Categories which begins on p. 243.
