SUBJECT: Suggestion for Excellence Poster Content

REFERENCE: OL-13086-87, dated 27 March 1987, Subject:
Achievement of Excellence Poster Contest

1. First, let me apologize for the long delay between your memo of 27 March to the Fine Arts Commission (FAC) and this response. A variety of reasons, including the fact that the FAC was without a Chairperson for two months, caused a review of your suggestion to be delayed.

2. I have been advised by both the FAC and the Employee Activity Association (EAA) that, while your suggestion has merit, they are not able to pursue it at this time. I share your feeling that government employees often are stereotyped as second best when we are truly second to none. Our Agency has been successful in many new initiatives because the Congress and the Administration recognize that the CIA is not the typical government bureaucracy. We must not lose our edge of excellence.

3. Thanks again for your suggestion. I'm sorry that we cannot act on it now.

MEMORANDUM FOR:
Fine Arts Committee

STAT

FROM:
Engineer, Field Engineering Branch, RECD/OL

STAT

SUBJECT: Achievement of Excellence Poster Contest

STAT

1. I propose that the Fine Arts Committee endorse an Agency-wide contest for the creation of a poster that demonstrates our commitment towards the achievement of excellence.

STAT

2. As we know, at the Agency, every employee plays an important role no matter how trivial the job might seem, because someone either near or far is depending on our commitment to do our job as best as we can. It is mandatory that we strive for excellence, because of what this Agency stands for, the preservation of this nation's freedom and to aid other countries who have the same goal as we, the people of these United States.

STAT

3. Too often on the job, or when interacting with non-government employees we are made aware of the stigma of the government employee being second best. For me, this happens on the construction site when I hear construction workers jokingly say, "That's o.k., this is good enough, it's a government job." I realize it's in jest, but it still is irritating when we try to do the best we can.

STAT

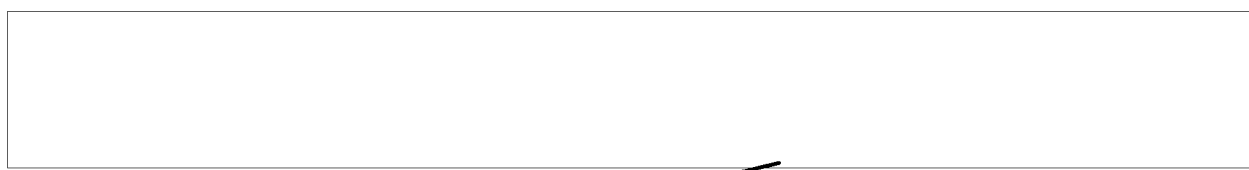

4. Therefore, I propose this poster contest to remind us and to show visitors our commitment towards the achievement of excellence, because if we fail, who else can we depend on.
