RE: Speaking Request
National Security and Risk Management Conference
American Bankers Association
Hyatt Regency Grand Cypress, Orlando, Florida
27 January 1988

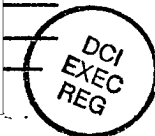

Mr. Boris F. Melnikoff, Corporate Director of Special Services First Atlanta Corporation, and Mr. Edwin R. Hall, Division Manager of the Risk Management Center of the American Bankers Association, on behalf of the Association have invited you to be the keynote speaker at the Conference on Wednesday, 27 January, 9:00 - 10:00 a.m. in Orlando, Florida. The proposed format is for you to give approximately a 30-minute presentation which can include a question and answer period if you wish. The topic of the lecture would be at your discretion. You could expect an audience of approximately 600 bankers, consultants, insurance brokers, regulators, insurance and security vendors and academicians from across the nation. The bankers who attend are typically middle to senior level executives responsible for management of the data security, security and risk management areas of their banks. The media will cover the conference. Last year's keynote speaker was Dr. Goerge L. Head, Director, Risk Management Education, Insurance Institute of America. (See brochure for further information.)

[redacted] Since the National Security and Risk Management Committee is a new and influential group in the banking industry, I think we would do well to participate in their Conference. With your calendar so full, I recommend that you defer this invitation to Bob Gates and suggest that he give his speech on the Soviet economy. If you agree, attached is a letter for your signature. Dear Sirs:

Thank you for your invitation to be the keynote speaker at the National Security and Risk Management Conference sponsored by the American Bankers Association in Orlando, Florida, on January 27th. Unfortunately, my schedule precludes me from accepting the honor. However, I suggest that the Deputy Director of Central Intelligence, Robert M. Gates, substitute for me as your speaker. Mr. Gates is a veteran intelligence officer and I am sure known to many of your members. If this arrangement meets with your approval, please contact my Public Affairs staff who will make the appropriate arrangements.

I wish you a successful conference.

Sincerely yours,

/s/ William H. Webster

Dear Judge Webster:

On behalf of the Security and Risk Management Division of the American Bankers Association, we want to extend an invitation to be our keynote speaker on Wednesday, January 27, 1988, at the National Security & Risk Management Conference. The Conference will be held from January 27 through January 29 at the Hyatt Regency Grand Cypress in Orlando, Florida.

The General Session you are scheduled to speak at is from 9:00 a.m. to 10:00 a.m., and your presentation would be approximately thirty minutes.

The National Security & Risk Management Conference is considered the financial industry's premier bank security and risk management conference attracting approximately 600 bankers, consultants, insurance brokers, regulators, insurance and security vendors and academicians from across the nation. The bankers that attend are typically middle to senior level executives responsible for management of the data security, security, and risk management areas of their banks.

Attached is a copy of last year's program to give you a better idea of the scope of this conference.

Again, thank you for considering our invitation and I am sure your participation will add a great deal to the quality of the program as well as to the overall success of the Conference. Please have your office contact Ms. Ann Latham at 202-663-5299 to coordinate your schedule.

Sincerely,

Historically, bank security professionals and risk managers each have emphasized their specialized portions of risk management. During this address, Dr. Head will discuss how risk management requires a coordinated balance between risk control to stop losses from occurring and risk financing to pay for losses that can't be stopped.
