CIA Accomplishments since 1980

Since the beginning of this decade, CIA has improved its ability to collect on and analyze a wide variety of issues in support of US policymakers. Our collection efforts range from traditional clandestine and open-source collection to highly sophisticated technical collection done with the help of improved imagery and SIGINT systems. Our analysis over the past years has become much more multidisciplinary to give policymakers a fuller view of an issue, and the range of subjects addressed by our analysts has grown enormously. Without improvements in our support infrastructure, particularly in the communications and ADP areas, however, we would not have been able to improve our performance in collection and analysis.
