5. The Professional Opportunities in Telecommunications (POINT) program continues to experience a surge of activity. Five interviews were conducted with prospective candidates, and those candidates were approved for the program by their parent career services.

6. With the end of the Fiscal Year (FY) drawing near, a review of the OC attrition rate seemed appropriate. The overall estimate that has been used for some time is a 10 percent rate for the OC Career Service. The review showed that, in FY-86, OC experienced an 11 percent attrition rate, and in FY-87 the attrition rate is down to approximately 9 percent. This seems to show a trend in the right direction, and that our ballpark estimates are about right.

7. The television program produced by the Educational Support Staff for the Office of Development and Engineering project was shown to the Secretary of the Air Force, several of his deputies, and general officers. The program was viewed at the  and all indications are that the program was very well received and had the desired impact on the audience. Several minor technical corrections are being made and 18 copies have been requested.
