Your summer assignment in the Communications Center is coming to a close, and I would like to express our sincere appreciation for a job well done. Your punctuality in reporting for duty, the enthusiasm and interest you demonstrated in your assignment and your willingness to work extra hours made a favorable impression on your supervisors.

Your primary assignment, logging and distributing incoming teletype messages, may have appeared somewhat routine and repetitive after a while, but I can assure you that it is an important step in the process of disseminating information to staff officers on a timely basis. Your ability to adapt quickly to this and related assignments has been noteworthy.

We hope the months you spent with FBIS were rewarding ones for you. Your colleagues enjoyed working with you and join me in wishing you the very best as you resume college life at the University of Pittsburgh.

Sincerely,

STAT
