We have solicited input from SD, RECD, PD and HOME for subject report and have incorporated their submissions into the attached response to the DA Plans Staff. Per John's guidance, our reply concentrates on OL support to covert action programs, plus shortfalls. RECD also suggests our overseas building program (i.e., Inman Report actions).

Recommend your approval and signature (and return to IMSS for copying & distribution).

Our due date to is COB, 10 Jan.

10 Jan 86

John, your changes are included in the new version, attached. If OK, please have it returned to me for copying, and I'll have it handcarried to the DA Mgt Stf.

Thanks,

ATTN:

FROM: Chief
Real Estate and Construction Division, OL

SUBJECT: DCI's Annual Report to Congress

1. For years the U.S. has used architectural design overseas that produced buildings that are open and airy, indicative of our open and free democracy. Terrorism has now forced us to reconstruct in order to achieve buildings that are defensible and offer protection for our personnel assigned abroad. The Advisory Panel on Overseas Security (the Inman Report), dated June 1985, stated:

"that a large number of facilities around the world, which once may have represented the optimal site for the conduct of American diplomacy, be replaced by more physically secure sites and buildings. The Panel believes that it is essential that a substantial relocation and building program be initiated and carried out with despatch. The alternative is to remain hostage to the likelihood of American diplomatic establishments being physically assaulted by mobs or bombed or sabotaged by terrorists. This building program should be undertaken as rapidly as possible and should be sustained until it is completed. To accomplish this, adequate, continuing, secured funding must be assured. The Panel recommends a capital budgeting system that will permit progress at the maximum feasible pace."

The Inman Report recommends that millions of dollars be put into the implementation of this program.

2. The potential workload increase is great. To establish a foothold, until permanent positions can be established, RECD has placed personnel at the Foreign Buildings Operations, Department of State, and has established an overseas presence to protect the Agency's equities in this dynamic program.

MEMORANDUM FOR: (DDA)

DDS&T

SUBJECT: DCI's Annual Report to Congress

We have received the usual eleventh-hour request from the IC Staff for contributions to the DCI's Annual Report to Congress. For the past two years we have been asked to focus on our progress in rebuilding intelligence capabilities. This year, the DCI wants to use a set of intelligence objectives and issues as the basis for organizing the report. He is taking this tack for two reasons. First, because he believes it is imperative for Congress to have a clear understanding of the issues and problems we face. And second, because he wants the Annual Report to echo themes contained in the National Foreign Intelligence Strategy that is being developed.

In keeping with this plan, I would like each of you to review the major world events which impacted on your operations this year and discuss them in terms both of the demands these events placed on you, and of your accomplishments and shortfalls in responding to them. Pursuant to the DCI's desire to have this discussion track as closely as possible with the aforementioned Intelligence Strategy, please discuss your accomplishments and shortfalls in terms of the following IC Staff-supplied items where appropriate:

① - People. The need to engage and retain the highest quality people with the skills required to do the job.

② - Consumer needs for intelligence on continuing problems and new issues. The principal steps taken to meet consumer demands in the face of expanding requirements and the impact of a widening audience for intelligence products. Measures taken to fill intelligence needs in traditional areas should be noted, as should efforts undertaken in such relatively new areas as technology transfer and space weapons. The effects on intelligence of emerging trends--such as the diffusion of power--should also be covered.

③ - Specific needs for intelligence on Soviet strategic systems and support of arms control negotiations and verification. The demands for technical and strategic intelligence in support of understanding Soviet strategic systems and arms control issues.

SECRET

- ④ - Support for operational forces. The measures taken to provide intelligence to military forces and others charged with operational missions.
- ⑤ - The explosion of collected data. The effects of the current and expected increase in the amount of data collected and proposals to cope with it.
- ⑥ - The challenges to collection. The changing collection environment. Emerging technology will have an impact on both collection systems and their targets; some changes have already occurred. Additionally, the effects of denial and deception activities should also be addressed.
- ⑦ - Security and integrity of intelligence activities. The need to enhance the security of intelligence activities and conduct effective counterintelligence.
- ⑧ - Communications. The requirement to relay and disseminate great volumes of data. The ability to communicate intelligence requirements as well as reports in times of crisis should also be discussed.
- ⑨ - Survivability. The need to conceive an affordable program for assuring the availability of foreign intelligence in all states of hostility.

Our contribution is due to the IC Staff by 17 January. I would appreciate receiving your responses by mid-day 14 January. In the interest of time, don't bother weaving together a narrative response; use key sentences with explanatory bullets. The IC Staff will build the narrative, integrating Community responses. Classification is limited to the SI/TK level. [redacted] will pull the package together. If you have any questions, please contact him on [redacted]
