Retired CIA Employee Suing Washingtonian

United Press International

David Atlee Phillips, a retired CIA employe, has filed a $105 million lawsuit in Montgomery County Circuit Court against Washingtonian magazine and the author of a November 1980 article entitled "Who Killed JFK".

In the suit, Phillips charges the article stated that he, using the name of Maurice Bishop, conspired with Lee Harvey Oswald to assassinate the president.

The suit, filed May 1, also says the article "was intended to and did convey the impression" that he had "conspired to commit and committed felonies at various times in his career".
