The President's Priorities for Intelligence

The following list details those intelligence issues that appear to us to be of top Presidential concern during the balance of 1977. The order in which they appear does not necessarily indicate an internal ordering of priorities. It should be understood that the list does not include many highly important ongoing questions that are receiving continuing attention in the Intelligence Community, but which require no extraordinary flagging at this time. Examples include Soviet leaders' long-term objectives for their strategic forces, trends in the Soviet and Chinese
