3. (S/SK/WNINTEL) [redacted] completed Stage III training of the Coordinate Remote Viewing (CRV) methodology during the last week of June 1988. [redacted] completed training in the Extended Remote Viewing (ERV) methodology in early June 1988. [redacted] will start CRV training during the week of 11 July 1988. WRV will continue to be utilized extensively in an effort to determine its effectiveness while employed in a search mode and in a future mode. Projected dates of release affecting the hostages have been repeatedly delayed and rescheduled. The most recent indicators predict that the release of the hostages has been postponed by another five to six weeks. Events as remote-viewed in future time, seem to be subject to many elements that skew the accuracy of the prediction. The greater the time span addressed and the more involved the players and the events, the greater the room for error. In any case, information provided to date appears consistent with other intelligence findings; therefore, WRV will provide weekly updates on the continuing expectations regarding the release of the hostages until such time as their actual demise is confirmed by credible sources.

4. (S/SK/WNINTEL) Forty sessions conducted by five remote viewers in a solo mode against an event of historical significance was recently completed. An ongoing in depth, in-house analysis of this effort will be completed in mid-July 1988.

5. (U) POC for this action is the undersigned at [redacted]

* Undersigned acted as Project Officer in the conduct of this utility assessment. Assumptions made by the undersigned that N-2 was a military document, and that it was stored in the greater DC area completely skewed the effort. In fact, the document was an unclassified advertisement for binoculars stored at a personal residence in Calvert county.

 Ongoing utility assessment deals with a designated beacon who has determined a particular task to be accomplished before 28 June 1988. This is being done in a solo mode. It appears that some viewers have attached an importance of military significance when in fact no such connotation was implied.

The results of this solo effort against an event of significance is being reviewed and analyzed. is the acting project officer.
