ERV SESSION PROCEDURES REPORT

WARNING NOTICE: INTELLIGENCE SOURCES AND METHODS INVOLVED

CONTROL NUMBER: 8702 NICKNAME: None

DATE OF SESSION: 5, 6, 17 Feb 87 TARGET COUNTRY: UR

REFERENCES: None SESSION NUMBER: 01, 02, 03

DATE OF REPORT: 18 Feb 87 MISSION STATUS: Closed

TECHNIQUE UTILIZED: ERV SOURCE IDENTIFIER: 021

1. (S/NF/SK) TASKING: Prior to the initial session, the Interviewer was provided a sheet of lined notebook paper with the following handwritten tasking: "1. Describe the structure known as "Building C". 451200/633160. NOTE: "Building C" is in a complex of other lettered (A, B, etc.) buildings. "Building C" is the most unusual at the complex. 2. (Feedback) To be announced." Following the initial session, (5 February 1987), the Interviewer was made knowledgeable of the actual site and the true intelligence question pertaining to this target. During the initial session Source was provided only the encrypted coordinates, as per Extended Remote Viewing (ERV) protocols, to preclude inadvertent geographic cuing. In subsequent sessions Source was also provided these same coordinates and told in each case that she would be returning to the same site as before at which time key elements of her previous descriptives were provided, i.e. "the area with the large building with the small windows at the top". No other cuing or descriptive data except as indicated above was provided to Source.

2. (S/NF/SK) SESSION: During all of the sessions covered in this document, there were no reportable anomalies or incidents which may have affected or influenced the data provided by Source.

3. (S/NF/SK) SUMMARY:

a. (S/NF/SK) During the initial session, Source reported on a cluster of buildings making up a single complex. One of these buildings has long narrow components like wings. Another resembles an "H" in its groundplan. The walls of the buildings are thick and constructed with blocks and field stone. The surrounding area, according to Source, is rather barren and isolated. Around the complex there is some attempt at landscaping but much of the ground foliage appears to be dead or dying as though it had been sprayed with a herbicide. There may be an underground component to this site.

b. (S/NF/SK) Inside the "central building", presumed to be building "C", there are several large rooms. One room is like a closed empty area, "like a warehouse...large floor area, like an airplane hangar, people with bright yellow visors, protective clothing...(things) like welding torches, bright blue/blue mixed burning, gassy smell...very low temperature, refrigerated space..." One room had a door which, "slid open like a wall (with) a bright light behind it...I can't see because of the (bright) light...its like an unholy blue light, like a science fiction movie, a "clear" light that comes out in bands...(its) peaceful, calm, serene...nothing frightening."

c. (S/NF/SK) Another large room gave the impression of an "underground rocket launch pad" with a "tall cylindrical object in the center...black on top, a brace or superstructure holding it upright..." Source went on to provide an extremely clear and concise accounting of an "ADL of a rocket firing." The clarity of the descriptions used at this time raised doubts in the mind of the interviewer about the accuracy and reliability of this type of information. Included with Source's description of a rocket firing were further images of the room containing this alleged rocket including data pertaining to the roof. According to Source, the room was generally domed shaped and possibly underground or at least below ground level. The roof appeared capable of opening up in a flower-like manner described as, "interlocking...going up then falling back...when it's closed, the ground would be camouflaged with landscape...and not discernible unless you were looking for it..." In subsequent sessions, the suspicions of the interviewer that the clarity of the descriptions pertaining to the "rocket firing" were indicative of an ADL drive were born out. The "rocket" took on a different appearance and eventually began to be described in terms more indicative of a long range dish antenna.

d. (S/NF/SK) When "changing" her perceptions concerning the rocket, Source initially perceived the concept of a "prism" centered in a concave "collar" which was later clarified as a dish like apparatus. This dish apparatus was capable of both horizontal as well as vertical movement and was described by Source as, "...elevated, concave collar, reflective, pivotal, goes up and down, moves side to side, directional...I get the impression like something can flow out of this prism like thing, (and) can be targeted at the same time...almost like it can draw energy from a source and send it back out again...(it) can be raised or lowered, concealed, brought out and used...tremendous power, heat, almost to melt down level, brilliant light, quiet, silent...a laboratory (feel)..." Additionally, Source described other activity in the vicinity of this object, or at least within the same complex, in terms indicating that construction was still on going, i.e., "people wearing dark overalls...pieces of building material...object being worked on...platform(s)...schematics, drawings..."

e. (S/NF/SK) Source was tasked to move forward in time to a point when the construction was done and to describe the activity. She initially focused on a portion of the facility containing what appeared to be the control center, i.e., "...glassed room, TV screens, consoles, tracking something, reminds me of an ATC room (in an airport), digits on the screens superimposed over a map looking down at an outline of continents from a great height...(the concave object) rotates in a counter-clockwise direction. It's somehow connected to the console. (I'm) looking down on the Western Hemisphere. When asked to specifically provide words describing the function of this facility Source indicated terms such as, "Strategic Defense, destructive, long range, undetectable, laser, strike, cancel, seek and destroy, no barrier, pin point accuracy, reflective, hostile, an image of high energy bouncing back, ricochet. If I drew a line it would go out at a 30 degree angle and come back at a 30 degree angle...(the) power source is molecular in configuration...non-conventional...(the power) comes all the way from (another) building..."

f. (S/NF/SK) In the final session, session #3, Source provided data which seem to indicate that she had been able to sort out irrelevant and spurious material. The building was described as, "cold, like concrete, steel girders, against one wall is like double doors...very tall building, at the top there are small frosted windows that pivot to open. An impression of a domed shaped object, like an igloo with slits along the top, perpendicular (with) a large building beside it..." The description of the console area remained relatively constant with images of different coastal outlines being viewed on different consoles and perceptions of graphs, computerized printing across the screens and numbers and digits associated with the consoles. An object, "of special interest to the Interviewer" (believed to be the same object initially reported as a rocket and subsequently reported as an antenna), now became a, "tripod like with a camera flash attachment, a reflector, round, concave...something coming out from the center, narrows, something like an antenna, its on a platform, tall, it can rotate 360 degrees and can pivot 180 degrees. (It) seems to pick up signals...seems to react to a signal of some type coming into it...it turns to lock on to it...seems to be related to the room with the consoles...I can't tell if they are getting information from it or if they are directing it..."

g. (S/NF/SK) Later impressions of the correlation of this object and the consoles "in the future" were described by Source as, "a strong feeling of being a central point. From here directions are sent to other points, like a control facility sending things to other points in the distance. They keep track of things and when things need done they signal another point at a great distance to act. Nothing specific, just directions, like a Command and Control (facility), always manned, always watching. (It) has a very sterile quality to it (like) the atmosphere you find in a laboratory...(an impression of a facility) like NORAD, monitoring activity all over the globe..." Source was then directed to access an individual at the site who "could help her understand the purpose and to provide her with more words to describe this purpose. Source reported an image of, "...a ray effect, like a dot with a ray coming out, on other places there is a dot then it intensifies, like one is pinpointing the affect of being hit and the other (is) showing where it was originated...its like they are playing wargames. They are so totally unemotionally involved, bizarre...somebody punches up something on the keyboard and the whole screen changes. It's like adjusting a camera, making things shrink or enlarge. It's like Star Trek...a science fiction type thing, what they are capable of doing...like it's so much out of the realm of possibility at this point, it's projected far into the future..."

4. (S/NF/SK) OPS FEEDBACK: Based on the wide variance of data provided by Source and the many unanswered or ambiguous concepts provided by her, i.e., "unholy bright lights...laser weapons...melt down heat sources...rocket firing...domed building...etc." it is impossible at this time to state what the overall gestalt of this site actually is. More important, it is also impossible based on Source's reporting to provide any definitive answers to the basic intelligence question. The data provided by Source is, in the opinion of the Interviewer, factual to the degree that Source was apparently at the proper site but failed, for whatever reason, to perceive and report on the basic intelligence question.
