Start: 1100
End: 1215

Site was flat brown, rocky land with a wide, dark road or airstrip on it. There were hills in the distance. On the southern side of the road/airstrip is a wide, shallow body of water of uniform depth. On the edge of the body of water was a white, blocky wall (AOL: man-made cooling pond). On the other side of the road/airstrip were several structures one of which is metal, and others which were linked together. On one end of the road/airstrip was a thing that pointed up at a 40-50 degree angle. Associated with the things was the concept of 'soft energy'; also associated with the thing was a pipe filled with energy and the idea of up, up, up (AOL: ASAT).

At the site was a man (described in previous session) in his mid-forties who wore white coveralls. He had some sort of special status. He was very sure of himself-almost cocky. He took something thin and rectangular-shaped, like a small panel (AOL: shuttle tile) away from the site. In leaving he had to sign out on a check-out list. His name sounded phonetically like either George, Gayorg, or Gaylord.
