At first there was an image of a suburban cottage style house around evergreens with overcast skies. The beacon person has a big heart and a female may be associated with this tasking.

I feel the target site itself is located near a remote land, water, beach area where large numbers of people visit or come to watch and see events in a warm sunny climate. Planes fly over this location.

The target has the colors blue, white, and brown (wooden items may be around the site). The target is a dark structure or object on a blue background. In particular, there is a metal man-made object which is big, long and narrow, but is white domed or has a rounded end. Only a few people can be transported by this object at any one time. The object is active when moving in motion and has powerful energy or light emanating from it. The target has superior technology, can move at a fast rate and may have radar or sonar capabilities. Only experienced personnel, usually military related, operate it and white streaks are left on blue water or skies in the aftermath of its motion. (The color blue is above and below the target). A propeller moves around and around on this object and a country banner may related to the target.

The object is near the water's surface or water's edge, is modular, and costly to be active. A gentle rocking motion sometimes occurs and a noise can be heard while operating this technical craft.
