E. SESSION SUMMARY:

----The target building was first perceived as a building with A-roof protruding from the side of a steep hill. The roof was white in appearance while the walls were reddish and sandy brown. The windows on the side of the building were arched and offset by the distinct presence of white-gray appearing bricks. See ENCLOSURE 1.

----Two fluted columns served to hold some sort of porch at the front of the building. A veranda or porch extended to the left of the building to some sort of small rectangular residence. There was a circular type driveway leading to the building; old, prominent hardwood trees were interspersed along the driveway. There was also a bell on the front porch and it could only activated by human means as opposed to mechanical or other means. See the front view at ENCLOSURE 2.

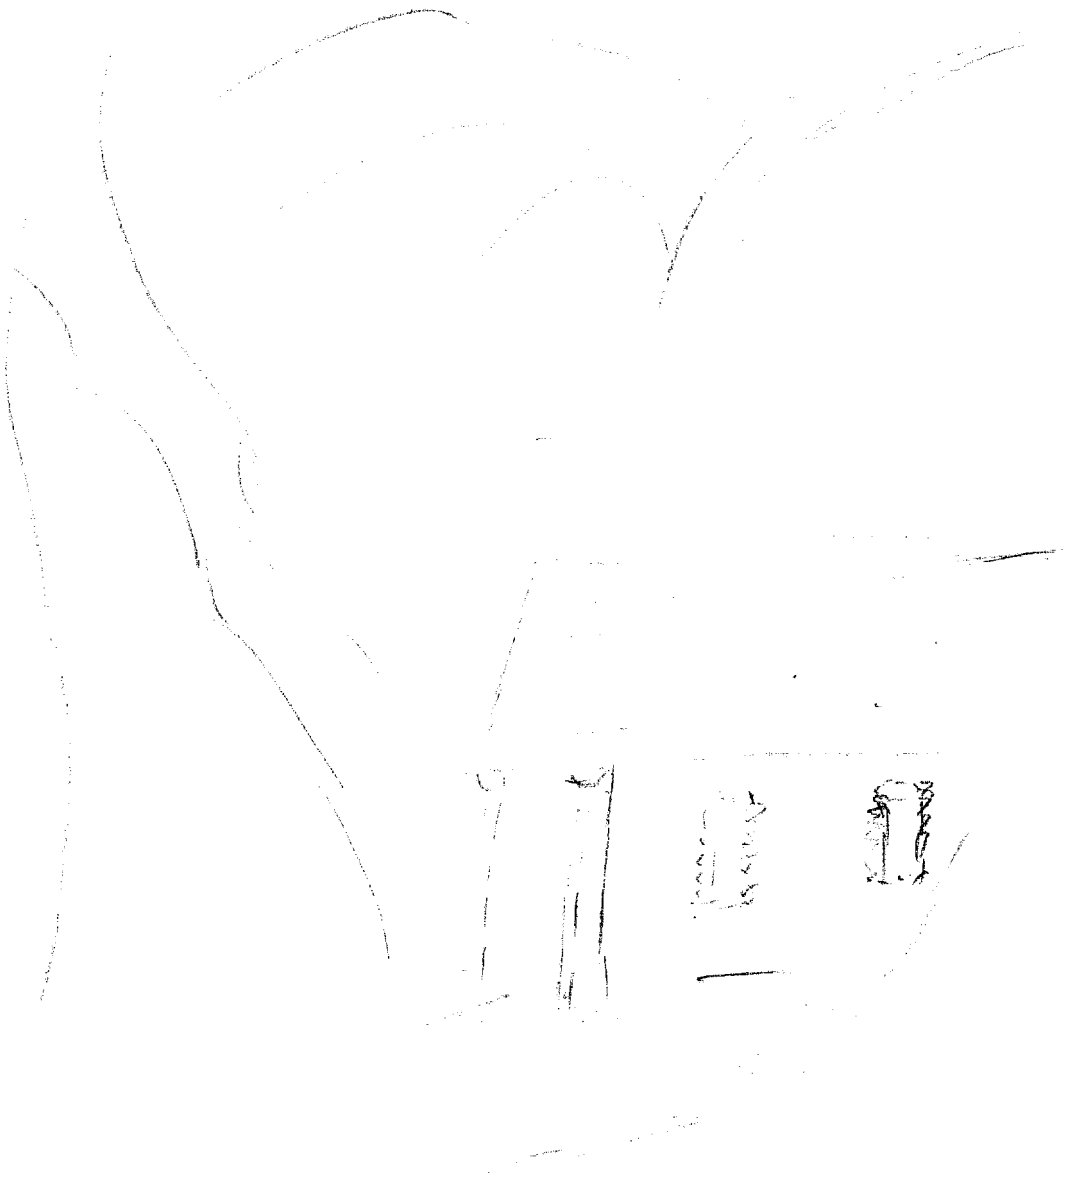

----An overhead perspective is provided in an overview sketch at ENCLOSURE 3. Additional buildings were observed in this pastoral setting but they were locate a few miles apart from one another.

---The building appeared set in the Far East. Connotations of scholarly learning, religious studies, and community meetings appeared associated with the building.

COMMENTS: The persisnt AOL drive of circular stained glass window bugged me throughout the session. Therefore I gave it free expression in a skech at ENCLSOURE 4; otherwise, I wopuld not have been abvle to continue the session without taking an extensive break.
