1. Interrogation was designed to bring out details of JAHNKE's dealings with Buero BLANK, and other similar agencies, apart from those concerned with the handling of the stolen documents.

2. JAHNKE sent papers on the following military subjects to his old CG, Gen Heinrich EBERBACH:-
End 50-

Discipline and Drill for Recruits,
The Part of the Infantryman in Arm warfare,
The composition of Arm Fighting Ops with Commandos, Air Strike wings and Parachutists,
The Defence of Europe against the East.

These papers were passed into Buero BLANK by EBERBACH Jun at the beg 51, and JAHNKE later heard that they had received flattering attention. However, he was not called to personally enlarge on them.

Spring 51

During his manifold activities, Prof. CLASSEN had established contact with Prof. FOCKE, the aircraft designer, who had recently completed plans and models for a hover plane and a speed boat, which allegedly represented revolutionary advances in their several fields. CLASSEN asked JAHNKE if he knew any parties likely to be interested in the development of these projects, and JAHNKE mentioned it to EBERBACH, at that time already in contact with Buero BLANK. As a result, a meeting was arranged at CLASSEN's home, at which the following were present:-

Hulf BLEY, Industrial merchant of WUPPERTAL, representing Prof. FOCKE,
General der Flieger SEIDEMANN (8 Flieger Corps), unofficial representative of Buero BLANK,
One unknown, representing Industry,
CLASSEN and JAHNKE.

BLEY described the projects and spoke of the necessity of raising money for further development. It was suggested that the Americans be approached, but this suggestion was dropped since no-one present had the necessary access. The meeting ended inconclusively, SEIDEMANN privately telling JAHNKE that it was too early to consider the realization of such ambitious plans.

beg Aug 51

JAHNKE however reported to EBERBACH that a trial speedboat was being built at VLORSACK, and a further conference was held in the premises of Buero BLANK, after EBERBACH had officially joined that organization.

(NOTE: Also after the documents had passed from JAHNKE to EBERBACH.)

Present were:-

Kapitän ZENKER, described as "Seefahrt Nr 1"
at Buero BLANK,
Wulf BLEY,
JAHNKE,
EBERBACH jun.

It was reported that the trial boat was completed and it was arranged on the spot for Admiral HAYE (Kommandeur der Kleinkampf Mittel) to represent Buero BLANK at the first (run).

(NOTE: These were actually later shown in the German newspaper.)

After the meeting, BLEY and JAHNKE took coffee together, BLEY questioning JAHNKE as to his occupation. Nothing leaths, JAHNKE described his plans for the LINDAG, whereupon BLEY exclaimed that he could effect JAHNKE's introduction to the "greatest detective in the world". Interested, JAHNKE was told of the existence of a certain Col. HEINZ, WIESBADEN, Bahnhofstr 62, to whom BLEY promised he would write on JAHNKE's behalf.

(NOTE: JAHNKE now says he had no previous knowledge of HEINZ' existence. In the first interrogation summary he is quoted as saying that HEINZ should be excluded from access to the stolen documents, when these were handed to EBERBACH in Jul 51.)

28 Sep 51 JAHNKE visited his mother in MAINZ, Freiherr v. STEINSTR. 9.

29 Sep 51 He called at HEINZ' address, which he noted was camouflaged as the "Michael Verlag". On mentioning BLEY's name, he was immediately received by HEINZ, although the latter said that BLEY had not effected the promised introduction. JAHNKE gave the purpose of his visit as being calculated to arouse interest in his LINDAG plane, which he proceeded to describe. HEINZ asked him if he had been in the Abwehr and, receiving a negative answer, said that he was not concerned with industrial security, but was engaged in espionage in the spheres of high level politics and military affairs in RE and Russian occupied AUSTRIA. JAHNKE asked HEINZ if he were connected with Gen. GEMLEN, of whose activities he had heard from EBERBACH jun. HEINZ said that he was not, and, during the course of subsequent conversation, gave the following facts about the GEMLEN organization:-

The question

- a) that it employed 50/60 Analysis officers, and was thus better staffed than the Abwehr had been,
- b) that it employed 1000 operatives,
- c) that it conducted operations all over RUSSIA and the Satellite Countries,
- d) that Gen HEUSINGER was GEMLEN's 2 i/o,
- e) that its HQ were in a village near MUXICH,
- f) that it was financed by the Americans.

JANKKE expressed interest in establishing contact with the organization, so that HEINZ promised to see what he could do; he did not appear keen. When JANKKE said that GEMLEN, with such an apparatus under his control appeared to be the natural successor to CANARIS, HEINZ denied this saying that part was reserved for himself, that he was already espionage chief in Buero BLANK, with OSTER as his 2 i/o. Describing his wartime activities, HEINZ said that he had commanded the BRAUNENBURG Bgt, and had conducted radio deception operations against Britain from Holland. On parting, he extended a cordial invitation for JANKKE to visit him at Buero BLANK, where he spent about three days each week.

On return home, JANKKE described his interview with HEINZ to EBELBACH Jun, and expressed wonder that HEINZ should be so indiscreet to a comparative stranger.

JANKKE described his encounter with GERSTENBERG, saying that his intention had been to subvert a secretary, but that GERSTENBERG had been pre-warned of his visit by GLASSEN, so that they parted after an exchange of insults. His account of the LEVINKUSSEN incident is subjective but agrees with GERSTENBERG's in all essentials.

Charged by Coca-Cola with investigating the source of an article against CC which had appeared in the FRANKFURT KPD newspaper, "Sozialistische Volkzeitung", which was assumed to have been inspired by the German soft drink industry, JANKKE again called on HEINZ to see if the latter would give him a lead into the local KPD. HEINZ could not, but he put JANKKE on to the WIESBADEN LGV, as a result of which he had an interview with the chief, Sr. MEYER. MEYER was also unable to help but he arranged for JANKKE to meet his FRANKFURT vis-a-vis in Cafe KRANZLER, FRANKFURT at 1000 hrs on 20 Nov 51.

JANKKE discovered that a KPD member, Reinhard SCHMIDT, was working the OPPENHEIM Coca-Cola concession; Peter HERDT & Sons. He briefed SCHMIDT to ascertain the source of the BYZ article, which SCHMIDT agreed to do.

JANKKE kept the RV in Cafe KRANZLER, duly meeting a certain DEPACK, who, on hearing JANKKE's business, regretted that he had no source in the local KPD.

beg Dec 51

JANKKE visited Buero BLANK to pick up EBERBACH jun. EBERBACH was out and, while JANKKE was waiting, HEINZ came into the vestibule, greeted JANKKE and, assuming that JANKKE had called to pay the promised visit, took him into his office. Here he showed JANKKE a map pinned to a cupboard, which bore a number cabalistic signs and which he described as prepared by OSTER under his direction to show the extent of their espionage operations. Referring again to GEMLEN, against whom he seemed to bear a grudge, he said that GEMLEN had recently suffered severe operational losses, but that he was still financed by the Americans to the extent of $6,000,000 yearly. JANKKE then took his leave to collect EBERBACH.

He described his conversation with HEINZ to EBERBACH, who asked him to report it in writing. At first unwilling, JANKKE eventually complied, later learning that EBERBACH had passed it to HEUSINGER, who had in turn shown it to HEINZ.

(NOTE: JANKKE says that this incident led to EBERBACH first losing favour with BLANK, since his report was apparently not believed.)

EBERBACH jun then left for PARIS.

JANKKE assumed that it was at this time that GERSTENBERG first repaired to KIELMANNSEGG to report CLASSEN's loose allegations regarding himself and EBERBACH. He later learned from EBERBACH jun that these were:-

- a) that JANKKE was informed of all the PETERSBERG military discussions five minutes after they had taken place by EBERBACH,
- b) that JANKKE was employed by BLANK, from which he had received large sums of money and the promise of a regt command,
- c) that he maintained a dwelling with mistress for EBERBACH in a large town, where alcoholic and sexual orgies took place.

Jan 52

EBERBACH was called back from PARIS, faced with the allegations, ordered to break contact with JANKKE and suspended from duty without pay.

Gen EBERBACH communicated these facts to JANKE and asked him to attend a council of war in BAD DOLL, enclosing DM 50 traveling expenses. Gen EBERBACH, his son and JANKE duly conferred, as a result of which JANKE learned of GLASSEN's (or GERSTENBERG's) allegations and the fate of his report on NIENZ. At Gen EBERBACH's request, he prepared a written refutation of the charges on the spot, later supporting it with a sworn statement prepared by his lawyer.

3. Interrogation was broken off at this point.
