OPERATION ARROW (Johnny)

(B)(3)

[REDACTED] was discharged from the army on 12/3/45 by Kraftfahr-Ers. Abt. 12, Wiesloch, near Heilbronn, as DU-a.v., as a result of Hirnverletzung (head injuries) suffered as a result of an accident in Nov. 1944. While in the hospital at Heilbronn he received a letter from his mother-in-law in Nuernberg to say that his wife had gone to Linz, where she was working in the Hermann Goering Werke; but that he needn't worry, as she promised to come to Nuernberg if the war got close. [REDACTED] (B)(3)

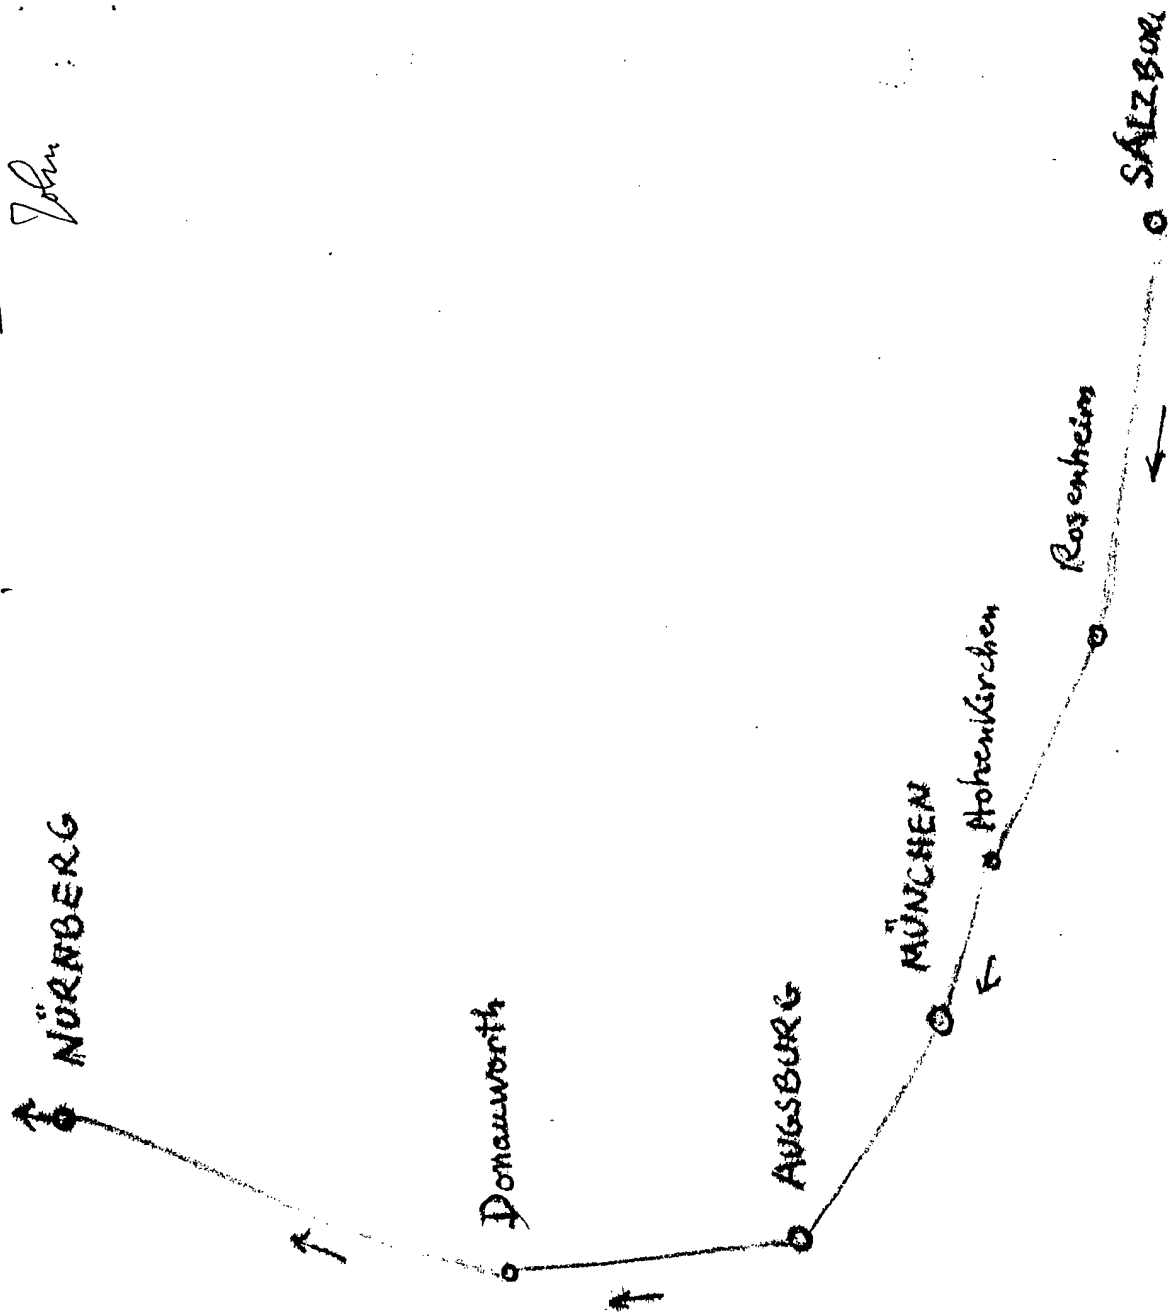

[REDACTED] (B)(3) stayed in Heilbronn till the Americans approached, reporting daily at the hospital, and, even though mustered out of the army, helping with the defenses. About 10/4/45, when the Russians were in Vienna and the Americans about to take Heilbronn, he got worried and came to Nuernberg, only to find that his mother-in-law had received no word from his wife and presumed she was still in Linz. He gets a Reisegenehmigung from the Polizei-Praesident on 16/4/45 to go there for "Arbeitsaufnahme und Besuch der evakuierten [REDACTED] (B)(3) No trains were available on the direct route via Passau, but a soldier friend takes him in his car via Muenchen and Wasserburg, where he drops him and turns south to the Res. His route thence is Seebruck-Traunstein-Salzburg-Bad Ischl-Lambach-Linz. In Linz he will report at the Wehrmeldeamt and the Arbeitsame, only to find his wife has fled back to her mother in Nuernberg. Instead of working in the Hermann Goering Werke, he starts back on foot to find her, after reporting at the Wehrmeldeamt, via Passau-Staubing-Regensburg.
