MEMORANDUM FOR: The Director
Federal Bureau of Investigation

ATTENTION: Criminal Investigation Division

SUBJECT: Jeffrey STEINBERG (U)

1. On 20 September 1984 a former Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) employee, Mr. [redacted] telephonically advised a current employee that one Jerrrey Steinberg is allegedly attempting to recruit personnel to assassinate unnamed persons in Bolivia and Columbia. Steinberg is reportedly attempting to recruit Cuban nationals who worked for CIA as well as CIA retirees and active duty personnel with a paramilitary background. [redacted] advised that Steinberg has attempted to contact CIA employees in Columbia. Steinberg is reported to have twenty million dollars at his disposal. ~~(S)~~

2. Mr. [redacted] advised that Steinberg is employed by Presidential candidate Lyndon La Rouche. Steinberg is listed as the Counterintelligence Director for the Executive Intelligence Review (attached) which was founded by La Rouche. His business address is 304 W. 58th Street, New York, New York. He is reported to use three telephone numbers: 689-1021, 703-435-8617 and 703-777-3342. ~~(S)~~

3. In a subsequent call to the same employee on 25 September 1984, Mr. [redacted] advised that an unidentified U.S. Government Installation [redacted] dealing in armaments may be targetted by a La Rouche group. More specific information was not known. ~~(S)~~

4. The information concerning Steinberg's alleged recruiting was verbally passed to Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) Liaison Officer, [redacted] on 21 September 1984. Mr. [redacted] advised that a U.S. Senator had also passed the information to the FBI and the White House. ~~(S)~~

From the Managing Editor

Henry Kissinger's response to President Reagan's March 23 announcement of a policy of strategic defense that would end the era of Mutually Assured Destruction (MAD) has been to term that historic step irrelevant to present realities.

Kissinger proclaimed himself a British agent in his London speech last May 10, stating that he had worked more closely with the British Foreign Office than the U.S. administration as Secretary of State. And as Lyndon LaRouche describes in this week's Special Report, everything Kissinger did on arms control was to the benefit of the Soviets at U.S. expense, whatever his motives may have been. There is no contradiction in these actions on behalf of both London and Moscow. Kissinger is a thug for an anti-American policy faction with branches in both locations.

This network is deploying rapidly to attempt to keep President Reagan from restoring America's military and economic strength. Alexander Bovin, a Soviet member of the Anglo-Soviet Roundtable, told the BBC in London April 20 that there could be "no constructive dialogue" with the U.S. while Reagan was in office. The Foreign Office's Simon Rifkind is going to Moscow for high-level talks. Georgii Arbatov, in the United States for the 14th Dartmouth Conference, attacked beam weapons as "a first-strike capability." And Lord Solly Zuckerman, Britain's ranking peacenik, has published an attack on beam weapons, suggesting that the world would be better off without Mr. Reagan.

In this week's Special Report, we present the evidence submitted to the U.S. Senate in April of Kissinger's deliberate concealment of national security information which would have convinced President Nixon and Congress not to conclude the SALT I arms control agreement. Senate action on this matter is urgent, we conclude.

Subscribers will recall last week's Special Report, documenting the role of the U.S.-based Jerusalem Temple Foundation in prompting bloodbaths and regional wars. Now, the Kach movement in Israel led by Jewish Defense League fanatic Meir Kahane, has termed the April 18 bombing of the U.S. embassy in Beirut "divine justice" against America. Kahane is scheduled to meet with Jerusalem Temple Foundation chief Terry Risenhoover regarding the latter's funding for Kach. Kahane's April 20 statement on the bombing provides grounds for a second agenda item: having the foundation banned in the United States as subversive and terrorist-linked.
