DAILY BRIEF
28 AUGUST 1965

1. South Vietnam

The ferment against the government continues in intellectual circles.

Students in Hué reiterated last evening their determination to press on with their struggle until the present government is overthrown and an elected, civilian one installed. They are sending representatives to other areas to develop support for this cause.

A three-day conclave of intellectuals has been called in Hué, starting tomorrow. Its sponsors say they hope to keep the meeting in constructive channels

2. Dominican Republic

The Imbert forces are going ahead with their plans for a mass demonstration in Santo Domingo tomorrow.

The rebel side is worried by Imbert's refusal to sign the revised "Act of Reconciliation" and by the forthcoming demonstration. Caamano went on the air briefly last night to urge his followers to remain alert.

3. Kashmir

U Thant apparently does not now plan to move strongly into the Kashmir situation.

United Nations Under Secretary Bunche says Thant may merely talk to Security Council members, urging them to call on India and Pakistan to "exercise restraint."

According to the latest word from United Nations observers in Kashmir, the Pakistanis now hold no posts on the Indian side of the cease-fire line, while the Indians hold four posts on the Pakistani side. The Pakistani commander reportedly threatens to strike elsewhere in retaliation.

4. Yemen

The Yemeni republicans feel that they have been sold out by the Egyptians, even though the republican government is outwardly complying with the terms of the Faysal-Nasir agreement.

5. Indonesia

Ambassador Green has concluded that the two outlying US consulates in Indonesia should remain in place for the time being. Both consulates have been subjected to serious hostile demonstrations recently.

The consulate at Surabaya in East Java is likely to continue to be harassed heavily. The consul there believes the odds are that he will be forced to close by the end of the year.

The consulate in Medan, in northwestern Sumatra, is not as isolated from local people as is that at Surabaya, and pressures against it do not seem stronger now than they were six months ago.

6. Greece

Tsirimokos looks like a loser, although the confidence vote has not been taken yet. The pundits in Athens are now watching for the King's next move.
