b. Dr. Krunoslav DRAGANOVIC

He is a university professor. He arrived in Rome in 1943 as a representative of the Croatian Red Cross. His true purpose was to inform the Vatican on Croatian problems. As a Red Cross representative he assisted Jews and Serbs as well. This work enabled him to visit refugee camps. For a short time he became a leader of Croatian emigrants. He tried to settle the political differences among Croatian emigrants. That, as I previously reported, ended his career. This did not affect his relations with the Vatican because he is a clergyman. I want to continue my contact with him because he has interesting information. Should the Croatian emigrants some day find themselves in difficulties, they will surely turn to him for help through the Vatican.
