Named U.S. Airlines Head
In Big Management Shift

Fred A. Miller

The election of Fred A. Miller as president and a director of U. S. Airlines was announced yesterday by the New York certificated all-freight carrier. In a sweeping change of management in which all officers and directors resigned, the company also announced the election of Lyle F. O'Rourke as secretary and general counsel.

Mr. Miller resigned as president and board chairman of Air America, a military contract carrier, to accept the presidency of U. S. Airlines, which operates between cities in the Northeast and Southeast and also as a contract carrier for the military. Mr. Miller had been a director and vice president of the Flying Tiger Line from 1945 to 1948, but resigned to found Air America. Mr. O'Rourke, an attorney, has been engaged in the general practice of law in Washington and New York.

Further additions to the company's board of directors and slate of officers will be made in the near future, Mr. Miller said.
