1. You are again urged to consider this primarily as an interim report, since (a) further data will be forthcoming in 2JI-737 and other reports concerning HATTORI's rearmament plan, SHICKMRA, TAISUM, and other rearmament associates, his feud with IMAKURO, andhis group at the Demobilisation Board; (b) even after the above reports are fully processed, a grand reinter cogation of Source on the many questions and detailed references unsettled in this and the other reports must be made before the information can be considered at all conclusive. 2. Re para, 11, 736 A: stated that KOTANI was a rather notorious figure in Europe during wartine; considerable material should be on our of files concerning him. Source indicated verbally that he believed HATTORI' which-level Chinese CF defector was probably being operated through either KOTANI or KUWARARA. 3. The punch-line of 736 A was put so inconspicuously in the last sentence of Source's remarks that its significance might be overlooked. After General Willoughby left and the anti-HATTORI (Japanese AND American) forces closed in for a knock-out, HATTORI decided apparently to get his information across indirectly as well as directly. The bearing upon is obvious, especially in view of the dearth of clear-out sub-sources in the latter. 4. The most interesting thing about 736B to us is the manner in which the information was obtained: obviously HATTORI's unnamed friend in the States appears to get around rether freely, even assuming that he is a newspaperman, and appears to have access to rather interesting information. One might conclude that this is one tentacle of the HATTORI intelligence—gathering organization which was discreetly overlooked by Source in 736 A.						على روسور
No. of Pages: 9: 5 (A), 1 (B), 3 (C). No. of Enclosures: Report Made By:			· Ener	7-		47 nt 5
No. of Pages: 9: 5 (A), 1 (B), 3 (C). No. of Enclosures: Report Made By:
Distribution: By copy to: Which For — 2 Orally to: MICROFILMED JUL 13.1966 Source Cryptonym: References: ZII-689, 724, 725; ID-289, ZII- Source, Operational Data, and Comments: 1. You are again urged to consider this primarily as an interim report, since (a) further data will be forthdoming in ZII-737 and other reports concerning HATTORI's rearmanent plan, SHII.04HURA, TANSUMI, and ther rearmament associates, his feud with IMAKURO, andhis group at the Dembilization Board; (b) even after the above reports are fully processed, a grand reinterwegation of Source on the many questions and detailed references unsettled in this and the other reports must be made before the information can be considered at all conclusive. 2. Re para, 11, 736 A: J stated that KOTANI was a rather notorious figure in Europe during warting; considerable material should be on our of files concerning him. Source indicated verbally that he believed HATTORI' "high-level Chinese Of defector" was probably being operated through eithe KOTANI or KUMABARA. 3. The punch-line of 736 A was put so inconspicuously in the last sentence of Source's remarks that its significance might be overlooked. After General Hilloughby left and the anti-HATTORI (Japanese AND American). forces closed in for a knock-out, HATTORI decided apparently to get his information across indirectly as well as directly. The bearing upon [] Is obvious, especially in view of the dearth of clear-cut sub-sources in the latter. 4. The most interesting thing about 736B to us is the manner in which the information was obtained: obviously HATTORI's unnamed friend in the States appears to get around rether freely, even assuming that he is a newspaperman, and appears to have access to rather interesting information. One might conclude that this is one tentacle of the HATTORI intelligence— gathering organization which was discreetly overlooked by Source in 736 A.					Local File 1	10 br 301,302,
Distribution: By copy to: Mash Fox — 2 Files — 3 COCT 5 References: ZUI-689, 724, 725; FD-289, ZUI- Source Cryptonys: References: ZUI-689, 724, 725; FD-289, ZUI- Source, Operational Data, and Comments: 1. You are again urged to consider this primarily as an interim report, since (a) further data will be forthcoming in ZUI-737 and other reports concerning RETURI's rearmanent plan, SHI-MIRA, TAISUM, and other resports concerning Returni's rearmanent plan, SHI-MIRA, TAISUM, and other resports concerning hearts, (b) even after the above reports are fully processed, a grand reinterrogation of Source on the many questions and detailed references unsettled in this and the other reports must be made before the information can be considered at all conclusive. 2. Re para, 11, 736 A: 3. The purch—line of The A was put so inconspicuously in the last sentence of Source's remarks that its significance might be overlooked, After General Willoughby left and the anti-HATTORI (Japanese AND American) forces closed in for a knock-out, HATTORI decided apparently to get his information across indirectly as well as directly. The bearing upon 3. The most interesting thing about 736B to us is the manner in which the information was obtained: obviously HATTORI's unnamed friend in the States appears, to get around rether freely, even assuming that he is a newspaperman, and appears to have access to rather interesting information. One might conclude that this is one tenacle of the HATTORI intelligence—gathering organization which was discreetly overlooked by Source in 736 A.				۰	· · · · · ·	=
Source Cryptonys: References: ZJE-689, 724, 725; FD-289, ZJE-80urce, Operational Data, and Comments: 1. You are again urged to consider this primarily as an interim report, since (a) further data will be forthcoming in ZJE-737 and other reports concerning RATTERI's rearmament plan, SHR CHURA, TABUM, and other reports concerning RATTERI's rearmament plan, SHR CHURA, TABUM, and other reports concerning RATTERI's rearmament plan, SHR CHURA, TABUM, and other reports concerning RATTERI's rearmament plan, SHR CHURA, TABUM, and other reports concerning Report, b) even after the above reports are fully proceeded, a grand reinterrogation of Source on the many questions and detailed references unsettled in this and the other reports must be made before the information can be considered at all conclusive. 2. Re para, 11, 736 &: stated that KOTANI was a rather notorious figure in Europe during wartine; considerable material should be on our of files concerning him. Source indicated verbally that he believed RATTERI' high-level Chinese CP defectors was probably being operated through eithe KOTANI or KUWABARA. 3. The punch-line of 736 A was put so inconspicuously in the last sentence of Source's remarks that its significance might be overlooked. After General Willoughby left and the anti-HATTORI' (Japanese AMD American) forces closed in for a knock-out, HATTORI decided apparently to get his information across indirectly as well as directly. The bearing upon [] is obvious, sepecially in view of the dearth of clear—cut sub-sources in the latter. 4. The most interesting thing about 736B to us is the manner in which the information was obtained: obviously HATTORI's unnamed friend in the States appears, to get around rether freely, even assuming that he is a newspaperman, and appears to have access to rather interesting information. One might conclude that this is one tenacle of the HATTORI intelligence—gathering organization which was discreetly overlooked by Source in 736 A.			- V	OVED DY.	ē .
Source Cryptonym: References: ZJI-689, 724, 725; FD-289, ZJI-80urce, Operational Data, and Comments: 1. You are again urged to consider this primarily as an interim report, since (a) further data will be forthforming in ZJI-737 and other reports concerning HATTER!'s rearmament plan, SHI-CHERA, TATSUMI, and other resumment associates, his feud with JMANIRO, andhis group at the Demobilisation Board; (b) even after the above reports are fully processed, a grand reinternogation of Sources on the many questions and detailed references unsettled in this and the other reports must be made before the information can be considered at all conclusive. 2. Re para, 11, 736 A: 3. The punch-line of Orgon during wartine; considerable material should be on our old files concerning him. Source indicated verbally that he believed HATTER! "high-lavel Chinese OP defector" was probably being operated through eithe KOTANI or KUWABARA. 3. The punch-line of 736 A was put so inconspicuously in the last sentence of Source's remarks that its significance might be overlooked. After General Willoughby left and the anti-HATTERI (Japanese AND American) forces closed in for a knock-out, HATTERI decided apparently to get his information across indirectly as well as directly. The bearing upon [] is obvious, especially in view of the dearth of clear-cut sub-sources in the latter. 4. The most interesting thing about 736B to us is the manner in which the information was obtained: obviously HATTORI's unnamed friend in the States appears to get around rether freely, even assuming that he is a newspaperman, and appears to have access to rather interesting information. One might conclude that this is one tentacle of the HATTORI intelligence—gathering organization which was discreetly overlooked by Source in 736 A.		y to: Wash Fox		•
1. You are again urged to consider this primarily as an interim report, since (a) further data will be forthcoming in ZJI-737 and other reports concerning HATCRI's rearmament plan, SHECKRIM, and other rearmament associates, his feud with IMAMURO, and his group at the Demobilisation Board; (b) even after the above reports are fully proceeded, a grand reinternogation of Source on the many questions and detailed references unsettled in this and the other reports must be made before the information can be considered at all conclusive. 2. Re para, 11, 736 &:] stated that KOTANI was a rather notorious figure in Europe during wartine; consideredle material should be on our of files concerning him. Source indicated verbally that he beliaved HATTCRI' "high-level Chinese OF defector" was probably being operated through eithe KOTANI or KUWABARA. 3. The punch-line of 736 A was put so inconspicuously in the last sentence of Source's remarks that its significance might be overlooked, After General Willoughby left and the anti-HATTCRI (Japanese AND American) forces closed in for a knock-out, HATTCRI decided apparently to get his information across indirectly as well as directly. The bearing upon I so obvious, especially in view of the dearth of clear-out sub-sources in the latter. 4. The most interesting thing about 736B to us is the manner in which the information was obtained: obviously HATTCRI's unnamed friend in the States appears to get around rether freely, even assuming that he is a newspaperman, and appears to have access to rather interesting information. One might conclude that this is one tentacle of the HATTCRI intelligence—gathering organization which was discreetly overlooked by Source in 736 A.	ng ang lab k alang di ang di	African Communication	- 1 16 oct	51	partial and a filler and	a. No Costi
1. You are again urged to consider this primarily as an interim report, since (a) further data will be forthcoming in ZJL-737 and other reports concerning HATTCRI's rearmament plan, SHICCHER, TATSUMI, and other rearmament associates, his feud with JMAKURO, andhis group at the Demobilization Board; (b) even after the above reports are fully processed, a grand reinter regard on of Source on the many questions and detailed references unsettled in this and the other reports must be made before the information can be considered at all conclusive. 2. Re para, 11, 736 A: stated that KOTANI was a rather notorious figure in Europe during wartime; considerable material should be on our of files concerning him. Source indicated verbally that he believed HATTCRI' high-level Chinese CP defector was probably being operated through either KOTANI or KUWARARA. 3. The punch-line of 736 A was put so inconspicuously in the last sentence of Source's remarks that its significance might be overlooked. After General Willoughby left and the anti-HATTCRI (Japanese AND American) forces closed in or a knock-out, HATTCRI decided apparently to get his information across indirectly as well as directly. The bearing upon 1 is obvious, especially in view of the dearth of clear-cut sub-sources in the latter. 4. The most interesting thing about 736B to us is the manner in which the information was obtained: obviously HATTCRI's unnamed friend in the States appears to get around rether freely, even assuming that he is a newspaperman, and appears to have access to rather interesting information. One might conclude that this is one tentacle of the HATTCRI intelligence—gathering organization which was discreetly overlooked by Source in 736 A.	Source Cr	yptonym:	□ Réfe	rences: ZJL-689		D -28 9, ZJI-7 3
(a) further data will be forthcoming in ZJL-737 and other reports concerning RATTORI's rearmament plan, SHRCHMAR, TATSUM, and other rearmament associates, his feud with JWARURO, andhis group at the Demobilisation Board; (b) even after the above reports are fully processed, a grand reinterrogation of Source on the many questions and detailed references unsettled in this and the other reports must be made before the information can be considered at all conclusive. 2. Re para, 11, 736 A:] stated that KOTANI was a rather notorious figure in Europe during wartine; considerable material should be on our of files concerning him. Source indicated verbally that he believed RATTORI' "high-level Chinese CF defector" was probably being operated through either KOTANI or KUWABARA. 3. The punch-line of 736 A was put so inconspicuously in the last sentence of Source's remarks that its significance might be overlooked. After General Willoughby left and the anti-HATTORI (Japanese AND American) forces closed in for a knock-out, HATTORI decided apparently to get his information across indirectly as well as directly. The bearing upon] is obvious, especially in view of the dearth of clear-cut sub-sources in the latter. 4. The most interesting thing about 736B to us is the manner in which the information was obtained: obviously HATTORI's unnamed friend in the States appears to get around rether freely, even assuming that he is a newspaperman, and appears to have access to rather interesting information. One might conclude that this is one tentacle of the HATTORI intelligence—gathering organization which was discreetly overlooked by Source in 736 A.	Source, O	perational Data, a	nd Comments:
figure in Europe during wartime; considerable material should be on our of files concerning him. Source indicated verbally that he believed HATTORIVE high-level Chinese CP defector was probably being operated through either KOTANI or KUWABARA. 3. The punch-line of 736 & was put so inconspicuously in the last sentence of Source's remarks that its significance might be overlooked. After General Willoughby left and the anti-HATTORI (Japanese AND American) forces closed in for a knock-out, HATTORI decided apparently to get his information across indirectly as well as directly. The bearing upon across indirectly as well as directly. The bearing upon across in the latter. 4. The most interesting thing about 7368 to us is the manner in which the information was obtained: obviously HATTORI's unnamed friend in the States appears to get around rather freely, even assuming that he is a newspaperman, and appears to have access to rather interesting information. One might conclude that this is one tentacle of the HATTORI intelligence—gathering organization which was discreetly overlooked by Source in 736 A.		ing HATTURI's reasonable associates, his for Board; (b) even as interpopation of a settled in this as	rmament plan, SHI eud with JWAKURO, fter the above rep Source on the many and the other report	OMBRA, TATSUMI, andhis group at corts are fully questions and ts must be made	and other res the Demobilis processed, a g detailed refer	ermament sation grand re- rences un-
Source's remarks that its significance might be overlooked. After General Willoughby left and the anti-MATTORI (Japanese AND American) forces closed in for a knock-out, HATTORI decided apparently to get his information across indirectly as well as directly. The bearing upon [] is obvious, especially in view of the dearth of clear-cut sub-sources in the latter. 4. The most interesting thing about 736B to us is the manner in which the information was obtained: obviously HATTORI's unnamed friend in the States appears to get around rether freely, even assuming that he is a newspaperman, and appears to have access to rather interesting information. One might conclude that this is one tentacle of the HATTORI intelligence—gathering organization which was discreetly overlooked by Source in 736 A.		figure in Europe of files concerning h "high-level Chines KOTANI or KUWABARA	during wartime; co him. Source indic se CP defector" wa h.	onsiderable mate ated verbally t as probably bein	rial should be hat he believe g operated thr	on our old d HATTORI's cough either
4. The most interesting thing about 736B to us is the manner in which the information was obtained: obviously HATTORI's unnamed friend in the States appears to get around rether freely, even assuming that he is a newspaperman, and appears to have access to rather interesting information. One might conclude that this is one tentacle of the HATTORI intelligence—gathering organization which was discreetly overlooked by Source in 736 A.		Source's remarks to the state of the state o	that its significand the anti-HATTOR t, HATTORI decided as well as direct	ince might be ov II (Japanese AND I apparently to ilv. The bearin	erlooked. Aft American) for get his inform g upon —	er General ces closed ation lis
	4.	The most interesti formation was obta appears to get are man, and appears might conclude the	ained: obviously ound rather freely to have access to at this is one ten	HATTORI's unnam , even assuming rather interest tacle of the HA	ed friend in t that he is a ing informatio TTORI intellig	he States newspaper- n. One ence-
					* * · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · ·
Classification		Classi:	fication
3atts H/W SECRET		H 11/1	N 1
FORM NO. 13.40 IR COPY Z	\mathcal{J}_{a}	atto H/W	SEC	RET		. 5

and Approved for Release to the Central Intelligence Agency

2000

Jale:

EXEMPTIONS Section 3(b)

3) Methods/Sources (3) Foreign Relations (1)

SECRET

(Cover Letter: ZJL-736)

5. Re 736 C: We have no certain knowledge of whether HATOYAMA finally did see Dulles or not, but it was scheduled. We are very much inclined to agree with Source Opinion of 3 e; HATTORI and his crony AKAMATSU will never be completely destitute of prestige and influence as long as they can maintain this connection.

October 17, 1951.

SECRET