Approval of Minutes

1. Action: The minutes of the meeting of 20 September 1951 (IAC-M-45) were approved subject to deletion of Mr. Dulles' name from among those present.

released in E.O. review E 88-0221 (DEC)
SE 15 (4 Oct 51)

Psychological Impact of a U.S. Air Offensive Against the USSR. (SE-15)

2. Action: This estimate was approved subject to the deletion of all but the first sentence of the problem and all of the conclusions including Footnote 1. CIA will work into the text the idea that the evidence available to us deals with conventional not atomic bombing and with the reaction of the Germans, Japanese and British rather than the Slavic peoples.

Proposed NIE: Likelihood of the USSR Deliberately Initiating War During 1952. (IAC-D-36)

possibly NIE 48 (8 Jan 52)
Likelihood of the Deliberate Initiation of Full Scale War by the USSR
DEC in E 88-0221

3. Action: It was agreed to schedule an estimate on this subject, it being understood that it may be difficult or impossible to reach agreement as to the conclusions.

released in E.O. review E 90-0165 (SAN)
SE 13 (24 Sep 51)

Appendix A to Review of NSC 68 Programs: Probable Developments in the World Situation Through Mid-1953. (SE-13)

4. Action: The proposed revision of Paragraph 2b was approved. It was agreed that the qualifying footnote should not be deleted but that it should begin with some such wording as:

"The following factors must be considered in connection with the above estimate of Soviet atomic capabilities."

Handling of NATO Requests for Combined Estimates on Soviet Economic, Political and Military Capabilities and Intentions-

5. Discussion: As a result of the Ottawa Conference and the desire of the smaller NATO nations to get a more adequate appreciation of the current international dangers, the NATO Standing Group is required to prepare an estimate on Soviet military and possibly political and economic capabilities, ~~and intentions~~. Thus far the JCS has considered that since responsibility for U. S. support for the NATO Standing Group rests in the Defense Department, its intelligence support should be produced by the JIC securing whatever aid necessary from the State Department and CIA. Admiral Johnson and General Cabell spoke of the burden on their own personnel which this entails and raised the possibility of attaching an estimating staff to the U. S. member of the intelligence committee of the NATO Standing Group in order to relieve their own Departments of this burden.

6. Mr. Dulles raised three questions with regard to this problem:

a. He was greatly concerned regarding the security hazards in providing U. S. contributions to an international estimate. Apart from the importance of the case itself, it might become a dangerous precedent.

b. He was concerned that the JIC procedure for arriving at a U. S. intelligence contribution to the NATO intelligence committee was not in keeping with existing responsibilities of the CIA and would in fact operate to the detriment of the IAC as the accepted and effective body for delivering coordinated U. S. intelligence estimates of national significance.*

c. He was also concerned regarding the advisability of establishing a separate group of estimators to be attached to the U. S. member of the intelligence committee of the Standing Group.

These matters will have to be looked into very carefully he believed. Admiral Johnson and General Partridge undertook to discuss the second point immediately with the Joint Staff in order that the U. S. work* could proceed pending approval of arrangements for international cooperation.

*Since the meeting it has been agreed that the IAC mechanism will be used to produce this estimate.
