Figure 2. Personnel Summary Report. Subunit commanders annotate a summary or "short report" of the personnel status of the subunit daily. The report shows the peacetime authorized, assigned, and present-for-duty strength of the subunit and its components, subdivided by afficers, warrant officers, noncommissioned officers, basonic service soldiers, and totals. Actual figures are entered in pencil.
