working-level experience with ISOO, and contributed a list of proposed 'conceptual' changes to the present Order. As a corollary contribution, the ERWG now began considering language-clarifying proposals in two specific areas: (1) defining the 'integral file unit' subject to declassification, and (2) identifying the 'scope of qualifying records' under the Order. In other ERWG business, the members discussed the White House's Directive on Weapons of Mass Destruction and its implications for the 25-year automatic declassification program.

The ERWG was formed in 1996 to coordinate declassification policies, standards, and procedures among the agencies affected by President Clinton's Executive Order 12958 on Classified National Security Information. Today over 40 declassification programs representing more than 25 federal agencies participate in ERWG programs.

(U//ARCO) From the Archives: DDCI Walters on Assassination, Drug Experiments in 1976 (U//ARCO) DDCI Lieutenant General Vermon Walters addressed the Charlottesville Committee on Foreign Relations on 9 June 1976. His speech, which was recently reviewed by the DCl team at the CIA Declassification Center, was wide ranging, humorous at times and very serious at other times. One of the themes of his speech was the charges of wrongdoing being leveled at the CIA. He mentioned the question of assassination in connection with plots against Cuban President Castro and said he opposed assassination:

"My own view of assassination is that I am against it for at least three good reasons -- it's against the law of God, it's against the law of man, and it doesn't work -- you just get another fanatic worse than the first one." He continued: "At the time and to put this in perspective ... I'm not trying to excuse the things that were done, I am trying to put them in perspective. At the time this loose talk about assassination was going on, Castro specifically, Fidel Castro was shooting people every day in front of the television cameras in the national stadium in Havana."

General Walters also addressed the drug issue:

"Why were we experimenting with drugs? We saw a man like Cardinal Mindszenty in Hungary who had resisted every pressure the Nazis could bring to bear on him suddenly appear before the newsreel cameras hollow-eyed to confess to every crime in the book. We thought this was done with drugs. We thought they might be used upon our diplomats or upon our military. We had to find out how they worked and so forth." He noted that "... obviously the man who gave LSD to the man without his knowledge was an imbecile. But this is why we were investigating this sort of thing. Not just the CIA and the armed forces, the National Institute of Health was conducting the same kind of research. Many universities were conducting the same kind of research and at that time nobody felt it was anything particularly monstrous."
