ATTN: Howard W.

Gentlemen:

In accordance with our recent telephone conversation we are forwarding copies of documents originally delivered to your organization in early 1967. This was done, at the time, in what we believed to be compliance with the intent of early patentable idea disclosure. The receipt of the original documents is verified in our records by signatures of persons working in your organization.

We understand that since the subject is of a classified nature, the project monitor has placed the documents in the proper channels. We have been verbally informed that action is being taken and that we will receive instructions in the near future as to final form and content.

It was, and still is, our desire to attempt to have a patent granted in which EMCO will retain the rights to exclusive commercial use of the invention and in which the U.S. Government will have royalty-free license to use the invention for its military applications.

We feel that this is a reasonable expectation since the basic principles were demonstrated by EMCO prior to entering into a contract to develop the system for airborne use.

(b)(1)
(b)(3) 10 USC 130

It is EMCO's policy not to ask for or expect royalty payments from the U.S. Government for the use of any of our patented items. We do however hope to retain our commercial rights in these inventions, since they offer the only protection for our commercial aspirations.

Thank you for your interest. I have never had any experience with classified patents. I don't know what to expect, much less what to do about it. Any assistance you might offer will be appreciated.

Sincerely yours,

for Fred J. Morris
