Peru Reacts to Airline Restrictions: As expected, the Peruvian government responded rapidly to the President's signing an order which will cut Aeroperu's flights to the U.S. to one a week. Tuesday the Peruvian government cut Braniff to one flight a week, effective in 30 days (as is the U.S. restriction). The Peruvian government, however, clearly left the door open for further negotiations and, in fact, has asked that intergovernmental talks be opened in Lima. The U.S. had earlier suggested the next round be held in Washington. (Low)
