6. One reason why [] feels MAEDA Minoru may actually be the real identity for WATANABE Ikujiro is that recently the names of both OIKAWA Genshichi and MAEDA Minoru have been linked in newspaper accounts with the ill-fated fourth expedition to Formosa, and the rumors of MAEDA's whereabouts therein printed fit in general with what [] knows to have been "WATANABE Ikujiro's intended movements. In addition, WATANABE Ikujiro has long been considered an alias for something, and "WATANABE" uses considerable Navy terminology at meetings. We reserve judgment; [] himself offered it as an opinion.
3. The following additions to previous information may serve to identify a few of the top leaders more clearly: a. Lieutenant General WATANABE, Ikujiro may be an alias for Navy Vice Admiral MAEDA Minoru, who was at one time during the war at Gunshireibu and connected with the Formosan fleet base at Taipei. "WATANABE" is about fifty-eight, stocky, and bald-headed with a ring-shaped fringe of gray hair. His present address, when he has been in Tokyo, is in Suginami Ku. He works closely with NEMOTO and uses the latter's two Tokyo offices, one of which belongs to the KAWAGUCHI Kikan.
