the Sin JCP National Convention in the summer of 1961 from Minseldo Headquarters Finance Department chief OZEKI Kiyoko, who made available the money from the organization fund. At that time, OZEKI had been a sympathetic follower of MAEDA. She recently became a mistress of TSUCHIYA Yoshio and under TSUCHIYA's questioning exposed MAEDA's misconduct.

- c. MAEDA is guilty of "loose talk" especially in discussing confidential internal problems of Minseldo, in public.
- d. MAEDA has failed to unify opinions within Minseido.
- e. MAEDA's moral conduct is increasingly being criticized by Minseido members. MAEDA's affairs with female members are too numerous to be ignored.
- f. MAEDA is responsible for the split within the organization by following and advocating the Soviet line of strengthening the organization through the peace movement. OEIKAWA and TSUCHIYA, on the other hand, advocate the HAKAMADA Satomi line of strengthening the organization first and then participating in struggles.
- 4. As a result of Minseido's action against MAEDA, the case has been taken up by the JCP Control and Audit Committee for appropriate action.

1. Field Comment. The SI January Mainichi Daily News reported that a Japanese intelligence service has confirmed the removal of MAEDA as secretary general during the Minseido 8th Convention. The report said MAEDA's removal is allegedly the result of internal conflict within Minseido, reflecting the current Sino-Soviet dispute. The new Minseido secretary general was identified as TSUCHIYA Yoshio. The Si January Akahata reported that four members of the Minseido Central Committee had visited the Mainichi main offices to protest this report, charging that it was utterly unfounded and a malicious frame-up designed to slander Minseide. See also FJT-8937 from a different official Japanese service for late 1962 information regarding the increased power of the Minseido pro-Chinese Communist faction led by OBIKAWA Junichiro.
