FREE WORLD SUCCESSES AND COMMUNIST FAILURES IN 1955
FREEDOM ADVANCES

UNITED STATES

Prior to the Geneva Conference, President Eisenhower declared: No peace can be attained in the world so long as people and states remain in bondage and free elections are denied. During the Conference, the President, clearly expressing the will and desire of the free world for peace, proposed land, sea, and air controls. The refusal of said proposal by the Russians proves that the latter do not desire peace and coexistence among peoples.

On Christmas Day, Pres. Eisenhower in a special broadcast to the satellite countries stated that the American people were fully aware of the sufferings of the peoples under the Communist yoke and shared their faith that justice will prevail and the satellite peoples would be able to return among the Free Nations of the World.

The U.S. State Dept. in a special message to the Albanian people on the occasion of the 28th of November, Albanian Independence Day, stated the U.S. was deeply concerned over the fate of the Albanian people because under Pres. Wilson it was instrumental in helping Albania to regain its freedom, but it was confident the Soviet supported regime in Tirane could not endure the tides of History.

On 4 March, the American people being aware of the dire needs of the Albanian people, offered a food grant amounting to one million dollars worth. On 6 March the Communist authorities refused this noble offer. Again the United States repeated this offer on the occasion of 28 November and its acceptance is awaited.

WESTERN EUROPE

On 5 May West Germany won its independence. On 9 September Dr. Adenauer visited Moscow upon Kremlin's invitation. By expressing the will of the German people for unification, faith in the Atlantic Alliance and being unconditionally backed by the free world, Dr. Adenauer refused the Russian proposals for a neutral Germany.

On 15 May, Austria won its independence. The determined stand of the West and the united pressure of the Austrian people obliged the Soviets to sign the treaty and to withdraw the occupation forces.

Besides the other nations, France, Italy and Germany ratified the Paris Agreement. These acts are indicative of the strengthening of the Free World against any eventual Communist aggression.

SOVIET UNION

Chosen by Stalin as the most capable successor, Malenkov did not remain in power for long. On 8 February he was replaced by Bulganin, allegedly for incompetence. This shift in Moscovite leadership shows the degradation of Soviet internal and external policy.

The economic and industrial instability continued to be the rule in Soviet Russia. With the fall of Malenkov came the purge of the Minister of Industry Casakov, the liquidation in Georgia of Commissar Rabava, Security Minister Rukhatze, vice-Minister of Interior Tsereteli and others.

In an attempt to alleviate this drastic situation, Kremlin's henchmen, Bulganin and Kruschev, started off on a frantic tour of Yugoslavia and Asia. But instead, they made complete fools of themselves and of the Soviet regime they represented. In Belgrade, for example, they got on their knees in front of Tito and apologized for the way he had been handled by the Soviet regime; they blessed national communism and approved of independent socialist paths.

ALBANIA

The end of the Five Year Plan has brought more poverty and suffering to the Albanian people. Such Soviet plans have as purpose the enslavement of the people under the Moscovite patrons. Where is the promise: Work as hard as you can and receive as much as you need?

The year 1955 also saw a continuation of purges: Bedri Spahiu and Tuk Jakova met their fate. Others will follow, for such is Communism. These purges that are conducted by order of Moscow will not cease until all the exploiters of the people ~~fall by the wayside~~ HAVE SLAIN EACH OTHER.

With Albania's membership in the UN organization, the spotlight will be placed on its regime for all the world to see, and the denial of freedom and human rights to the Albanian people will be widely evidenced.

SATELLITES

Following the pattern set in Russia, purges and liquidations continued to be carried out throughout the year.

In Hungary, the Prime Minister Imre Nagy and his stooge Farkas were purged in July.

In Bulgaria, fifty high ranking officers were executed in September for planning a national communist coup. Because of unrest in the country, the Bulgarian henchmen were forced to postpone the so-called elections from December to February 1956.

FAR EAST

The 29 Afro-Asian nations that participated in the Bandung Conference on 18 April, thoroughly exposed Russian imperialism. Ceylon's representative called Communism "the new form of colonialism" and pointed the finger at the states of Eastern Europe.

As in Russia and Eastern Europe, so in the Far East liquidations continued. Kang and Shin were liquidated in China; General Jap of Dien Bien Phu in North VietNam; and Foreign Minister Pu Hen En in North Korea.

MIDDLE EAST

On 22 November the Baghdad Pact was signed by Great Britain, Turkey, Pakistan, Iran and Iraq. This Pact rendered a heavy blow to Communism and neutralized the advances of Soviet imperialism in this sector.

GENEVA CONFERENCE

With the opening of the Geneva Conference on 18 July, the Free World proposed the unification of Germany, free elections in the satellite states and the creation of a commission for atomic control and its use for peaceful purposes. These were genuine proofs of the Free World's will for peace and coexistence. The refusal of these proposals by the Russians demasked the Kremlin leaders as imperialists and warmongers.
