Prime Minister YOSHIDA finished organizing his 4th Cabinet yesterday. The attestation ceremony will take place this morning. The new lineup follows:
OGATA Taketora State Minister
To get OGATA as Chief Cabinet Secretary, the Prime Minister broke precedent and gave him ministerial status. After accepting the post OGATA helped YOSHIDA with the Cabinet roster. His presence in the new Cabinet is expected to silence the critics who charge YOSHIDA with running a government by cronies...
To ASAHI , the appointment of OGATA came as an unexpected development. While it agreed in general with Mainichi that "inner circle influence" is still strong, it thought OGATA's appointment "enlarged the scope" of the Cabinet because of his wide experience as a journalist and politician outside the Liberal Party. The daily wondered if he can "adjust the complicated and difficult relations between the Cabinet and the party" and hoped that he would not be a "mere
