PUNITIVE ACTION TAKEN BY THE KADAR GOVERNMENT FROM NOVEMBER

PREFACE

DOCUMENT NO. _____
 NO. OF PAGES _____
 RECLASSIFIED
 DECLASSIFIED
 AUTHORITY: _____
 DATE: 16 1981

The attached list of Hungarians persecuted for behavior considered subversive by the Kadar Government was abstracted exclusively from Hungarian Communist newspapers and radio broadcasts since mid-November 1956. While minor technical errors such as incorrect date of source, misspelling of names, etc. may have occurred in the compilation of this document, in matters of substance the information is accurate and verifiable.

Names are listed alphabetically and, whenever available, address, age, occupation, alleged offense, and the action taken by the authorities (arrest, trial, sentence, etc.) are given. For each item of information the source and date are included.

While this list documents the cases of 1,780 Hungarians, it by no means represents all cases of Hungarian citizens against whom formal proceedings have been instituted and carried out. First, not every issue of every Hungarian newspaper was checked for the period covered in this report. Secondly, in some cases, only the sentences handed down at the conclusion of a trial were reported, omitting the several intervening steps of arrests, indictment, trial, etc. Thus many cases of arrest and indictment reported in the press in past months as well as currently are not listed here.

Finally, either the press itself or the Hungarian Government has deliberately withheld information. There are numerous reports of group arrests in which names have not been given. For example, the newspapers Nepszabadsag and Nepkarat of November 23, 1956 reported the recapture of 175 "former convicts" in Baranya County freed during the revolution, many of whom were presumably political prisoners, but as of mid-February, 15 "convicts" were listed as being recaptured in all of Hungary, not one being from Baranya County. Hundreds if not thousands of individuals were reported in the press as having been arrested for aid in border crossings but relatively few of these individuals have been identified by the press. In some instances merely the initials of the victims have been given. Five minors, identified only by initials, were reported by Nepszabadsag, March 12, 1957, as having been sentenced to jail terms ranging from one and a half years to four years for an unspecified offense. Fejermegyei Hirlap of June 24, 1957, reported two school boys in Szekesfehervar, sixteen years old, were sentenced to ten months each for alleged concealment of arms; they were not further identified.

This list is, therefore, incomplete in terms of number of Hungarians tried and in terms of the information available regarding individual cases. It is apparent that it accounts for only a fraction of the number of Hungarian citizens who have been persecuted by one kind or another of formal action taken by the authorities. It can only suggest the dimensions of persecution of the population by the present Hungarian Government.

Even casual examination of the attached list will reveal disproportionate sentences meted out for the offenses allegedly committed. For example, Mrs. Dezzo NAGY was sentenced to eight years' imprisonment, ten years' loss of civil rights, and confiscation of property for spitting on a hanged AVH officer pictured in Life magazine. Musician Jeno SIFOCZ was sentenced to two years' imprisonment and three years' loss of civil rights for playing "inflammatory" music. Andras KOVACS was sentenced to 13 years' imprisonment for wishing death to a policeman. While this list permits no inference regarding the technical legality of the Kadar Government's action against the Hungarian people, it does clearly suggest that the larger issues of justice and human rights have been grossly violated.

The Hungarian Government has seen fit to give wide publicity to a few trials, such as that of Ilona TOTH and her companions, executed on a charge of murder. It evidently hoped by this means to arouse world opinion against the action of all the Hungarian people in the October Revolution. Such widely publicized trials may obscure the cases of thousands of less prominent, named and unnamed Hungarians arrested, imprisoned, or executed. It is hoped that this list will permit a truer perspective of the extent and purpose of punitive action being undertaken by the Kadar Government against thousands of Hungarian citizens.

EXPLANATION OF COLUMN ENTRIES

Every effort has been made to avoid duplication resulting from variant spellings of names.

The place name given in parentheses beneath a name refers to the individual's place of residence or, where that was not available, to the town in which the individual was arrested and/or tried. Where only the name of the county of residence was available, that fact has been indicated.

COLUMN 2

Minors whose exact ages were not available have been indicated by the letter "M".

COLUMN 3

Occupations have been given as reported. Information regarding the role of some individuals in the October Revolution (e.g., membership on workers' councils) have also been entered in this column.

COLUMN 4

The specific alleged offense (e.g. hiding arms, printing and distributing leaflets, etc.) has been given when known. The more general entry "rev activity" (revolutionary activity) has been used to denote various offenses involving acts of resistance to the Kadar government during and since the October Revolution for which more detailed information was not available.

COLUMN 5

The action taken by the Kadar government or its organs in regard to the individual has been given insofar as that information was available. Where only the arrest of an individual has been shown, information concerning his subsequent trial and sentencing has either not been reported in the press, or was not available.

Specific sentences, when known, have been given; where a death sentence was known to have been carried out, the word "executed" has been entered. Where the original sentence was known to have been increased or reduced, both the first and altered sentences have been given.

COLUMN 6

Source and date of the information have been given in Column 6.
