(b)(3)

From: Sean Evins <sevins@twitter.com>
Sent: Tuesday, June 03, 2014 11:08 AM
To: (b)(3)
Subject: Re: redacted text   (b)(6)

Follow Up Flag: Follow up
Flag Status: Completed

Perfect

On Tue, Jun 3, 2014 at 10:58 AM, [   ]@ucia.gov> wrote: (b)(3)
(b)(6)

(b)(6)

- 52s

Expand

☺

Web Strategist & Content Manager   (b)(3)
(b)(6)

Office of Public Affairs

Central Intelligence Agency

www.CIA.gov

(b)(3)

From: Sean Evins [mailto:sevins@twitter.com]
Sent: Tuesday, June 03, 2014 9:01 AM
To: [   ]   (b)(3)
Subject: Re: redacted text   (b)(6)

If you see a redacted/black bar, you should be able to simply copy paste it into a tweet. Theres also this site: http://blog.bufferapp.com/the-ultimate-guide-to-adding-cool-symbols-to-your-tweets

1

As for effective first tweets- I would take a look at @HillaryClinton, @GinaEPA for starters. I will find a few more. You want to show the voice of the account from the get-go, that it will be more than just a "here's our press release"

—

Sean Evins
Government & Politics, Twitter
@Evins

On Mon, Jun 2, 2014 at 9:59 PM, [   ]@ucia.gov> wrote: (b)(3)
                                                                                  (b)(6)

So, quandary.... How do I make redacted text on the twitters?

Obviously it can be done, I'm looking at you @redactedTweet.

And yes, the irony that I can't figure this out is not lost on me...

--
Sean Evins
Government & Politics | Twitter
@Evins

Want the latest Twitter best practices, tips, news and more?

• Check out the new Twitter Media blog
• Sign up for our industry-specific newsletters
• Follow @twittermedia and all our industry-specific accounts