ADDITIONAL BIOGRAPHICAL DATA ON SERGEI LYOVICH SHEBALIN

ANTONOV, Kostislav, Lvovich, later changed to SHEBALIN, Sergei Lvovich, was born on 30 November 1920 in Leningrad, USSR. Subject legally changed his name from ANTONOV to SHEBALIN in June 1950 at "Amt fur Kriminaltechnische Statistik" in Munich, Germany, and is currently using this name. In order to avoid forced repatriation to the USSR he used the name of Sergei Freulich for several weeks in May or June 1945.

From September 1929 to June 1937, subject attended the 11th Middle School which was located at Mohovaya Ulitsa 26, Leningrad, USSR. Upon completion of the 7th year at this school the whole class was transferred to the 19th Middle School which was also located on Mohovaya Ulitsa. Subject completed his eighth year here. The ninth and tenth year of schooling was completed at the 28th Middle School on Mirochnaya Ulitsa, Leningrad, USSR. Subject was graduated from the 10th grade with the highest grade in a class of approx. 30 students and received the Colotoy Medal. In September 1939 he enrolled in the Leningrad electro-Technical Institute and studied here for three months. At this time he became eligible for the draft during the Finnish War, and in order to avoid military service in the Infantry, subject enrolled in the 3rd Leningrad Artillery School in November 1939. Subject remained in this school till September 1941. The 3rd Leningrad Artillery School was located in a large compound (1 city block) at Viborg and Katereshnaya St., Leningrad. During the summer this school went into the field at Luga approx. 110 or 120 KM southwest of Leningrad. During the summer of 1941, while in the field with the school, subject took part in several battles.

In September 1941 subject was graduated from this school as a Lt.

In September 1941 subject was transferred to Moscow thence to Alabino approx. 30 KM southwest of Moscow. At Alabino subject took a short course in rocket artillery. This course lasted from September to November 1941. While taking this course, 7 regiments of rocket artillery were formed here. Subject was assigned to the 5th Guards Rocket Launching Regiment. This regiment was broken up into 3 companies. Subject was assigned to the 2nd separate company. This company was sent to the front at Kharkov and remained there till December 1941. Subject was Chief of Staff of Company Hq. and was promoted to Sr. Lt. in Dec. 1941. He remained as Chief of Staff till the summer of 1942. In the summer of 1942, subject assumed command of the 3rd Separate Guards Rocket Launching Company and was promoted to Captain. He received the Red Star for action near Kupyansk on the Don. In 15 Aug. 1942, while crossing the Don River at Perepolny village, subject took his division across the river through the German lines and engaged the German tanks. Subject was in a barn when a German tank hit the barn and he was buried in the debris. The Germans rescued him and took him to the Hq. of the German division. From Div. Hq. at place of capture, he was transferred to Army Hq. at Kharkov, then to Vinnitsa near the Rumanian-Polish border in the South Ukraine. Subject was placed in an Interrogation camp and immediately got acquainted with Vlassov. Approx. 30 selected PW's were at this camp. Subject remained at this camp for one month. While at this camp, Vlassov discussed with subject the possibility of formation of a Russian army to fight against the Communists. In Nov. 1942 Shebalin and 7 or 8 other PW's were transferred to a PW camp at Hammelburg, north of Nurnberg near Rosenheim. Subject remained here till January 1943. In January 1943 he was assigned to a glass factory at Furt-in-Bald as a common laborer. In April or May subject was transferred to Leutzin in East Prussia. Here the formation of the Russian Army was in progress. Subject was assigned as Chief of Personnel. Vlassov arrived here in May 1943 and a few days later departed for Berlin. While at this camp Vlassov notified subject that he was to be Vlassov's adjutant. A few days after Vlassov's departure for Berlin subject was ordered to report to Vlassov in Berlin.

Shortly after subject's arrival in Berlin, Vlassov took him on a speaking tour in German occupied USSR. This trip lasted approx. 3 weeks. In June 1943 subject returned to Berlin.

The Germans turned over a villa in Berlin at 9 Kibitzweg as Vlassov's quarters. The organization of the Russian Army began here. From 1943 to Feb. 1945 the Hq. was located in Berlin. During subject's stay in Berlin he met Goebbels, Ribentrop, Goering, Donets Raeder, Himmler. All meetings were official, and subject was present because he was Vlassov's adjutant. In March 1945 subject was transferred to Karlsbad Soudetenland. Here he continued this position as adjutant to General Vlassov.

While still in Berlin subject met Uliia VORONKO, who was brought to Germany by the German Army. Subject wanted to marry Uliia VORONKO but due to very strong objection of General Vlassov the marriage never took place.

Vlassov's Hq. remained in Karlsbad for approx. two weeks. From Karlsbad the Hq. was moved to Kosoyedy, Czech., 60 KM west of Prague. Vlassov's Hq. was based here with the 1st Russian Div. of the German Army.

In May 1945 subject was ordered by Vlassov to go as Vlassov's representative to the U.S. Army Hq. at Pilsen, Czech. Vlassov wanted subject to request permission from the U.S. Command to let Vlassov's division through the U.S. lines. Subject conferred with the Deputy Chief of Staff of the U.S. forces, name unknown. The Col. informed subject that the div. could come through as PW's. Subject returned to Vlassov's Hq., reported the offer and again returned to the U.S. Army Hq. This time Vlassov came with him. During the second visit the U.S. Army C.G., through a representative, offered to let Vlassov's division be safely conducted through the U.S. lines with the following stipulation. All members of Vlassov's division were to put on civilian clothes and make their way into Germany. Once in Germany they would then be on their own. Vlassov refused this offer.

Soon after this Vlassov moved his Hq. to Schlosselburg, Czech., 35 KM SE of Pilsen. Here members of Vlassov's div. began to surrender to the U.S. forces. The surrenders were in small groups, not en masse.

On the way to the U.S. Army Hq. Vlassov's automobile convoy was stopped by a Soviet unit and the party was placed under arrest. Two of the cars in this convoy made a getaway. Subject was in one of these cars. As soon as subject got to the U.S. lines he was given provisions and furnished transportation to a wooded section of the country approx. 30 KM east of the German border at Eisenburg. The Americans transported subject and six other Vlassov Army members through the Soviet lines in a covered truck.

Subject and the rest of the group made their way through the woods to the U.S. Zone German border. The border was crossed near Eisenburg. From Eisenburg subject went to Deggendorf. Here a German school teacher issued false identity papers to subject. This identity paper listed subject as a German school teacher and was made out in the name of Fröhlich, Serge. From Deggendorf source went to Traunstein 90 KM SE of Munich. From Traunstein subject went to Kempten. Upon arrival at Kempten subject registered at the Wittelsbacher Schule, a white Russian refugee center. Here subject used the name of SHEBALIN. Two sets of documents were issued, one in the name of SHEBALIN, the second in the name of ANTONOV. Subject spent approx. one week in this camp and departed for Kaltenbach in the U.S. zone, Austria. The reason for this trip was to locate Ulia, his girlfriend from Berlin. Soon after locating Ulia VORONKO, both of them departed for Kempten. Upon arrival at Kempten, VORONKO received papers in the name of ANTONOVA and lived as his common-law wife. Due to the fact that the U.S. authorities began to turn over WEST citizens to the Soviets, subject and his common-law wife escaped to Ravensburg, Vargen, and several other cities in the French zone of Germany. Approx. five days were spent in the French zone, then they returned to Kempten. After a two day stay in the woods adjacent to Kempten, subject secured a room at #6 Brauhasse Str. Kempten. Subject and VORONKO resided at this address till the winter of 1946. While here subject made his living on the local black market. In the winter of 1946 Ulia ANTONOVA nee VORONKO departed for Munich. Soon after, subject followed to Munich and they met in the vicinity of the German Museum. Subject was arrested by the U.S. MP's during this rendezvous. The reason for the arrest was that Ulia ANTONOVA informed the police that subject was a Russian Nazi and served as Vlassov's adjutant. Subject was confined in the Police Presidium in Munich for 3 days. Prior to Ulia ANTONOVA's departure from Kempten, she informed the Kempten police that her billets were broken into and her belongings were stolen. The Kempten police upon investigation determined that nothing of the sort had occurred. When subject was apprehended in Munich, he was charged with making a false report to the Kempten police. He was tried by the "Schnell Gericht" and found not guilty. The American MI officer who arrested subject informed the court that subject, according to the available information, was a Russian Nazi. As a result of this charge, subject was placed in the "Stadlheim jail". He spent one month in confinement and was brought to trial in a U.S. court (regular Military Gericht). Verdict — not guilty. He was freed. The trial took place in November 1946. Subject returned to Kempten. He secured official employment with "Electro Anlagen" as a technical draftsman. This firm was a cover for a black market activity dealing in spirits and apples. Subject married Tatiana Afonasyevna RAUN in Kempten in August 1947. T. RAUN resided in Biberach, Fr. zone, Germany, before her marriage. RAUN left the USSR in 1943 and lived in Germany since then.

In the fall of 1947, approx. in October, source was again arrested by the German Criminal Police. The charge was possession of three sets of identity documents in three different names with the same photo and the receipt of ration cards on these false documents. Subject explained the situation to the police and was released without trial. Here subject destroyed all the identity cards except the one in the name of SHEBALIN.

At the end of 1947 the subject and his wife moved to Fliegerhorst, Memmingen, and are still residing there. Here again subject's chief occupation was black market. In August 1948 subject opened a grocery store (Lebensmittel) and is still the proprietor.

In the fall of 1948 subject's house was searched by the CIC. Nothing was found. The CIC informed were informed by a group of old Russian DP's at the camp that subject had a lot of Soviet propaganda leaflets in his house. In reality subject had several suitcases of vodka which he was selling on the black market. No charges were made.

In July of 1951 O. DIKOV asked subject to meet him in Munich. Upon arrival in Munich subject was offered a job with OSAINT. DIKOV explained to subject that this organization was anti-Communist and was financed by the U.S. Government. Subject was not a member of OSAINT but DIKOV told him that if any Americans asked him if he was a member, he was to reply in the affirmative, as one had to be a member in order to be employed by this organization. Subject's mission was to organize a balloon-launching operation for the purpose of launching balloons across the border into the Soviet zone, Germany. Subject did the ground work on this project, but nothing came of it because of lack of funds. After this, DIKOV asked subject to organize a network of agents to penetrate the Soviet zone of Germany. This net was organized and due to lack of funds nothing came of it.

For the past 2 months subject has been devoting all of his time to the operation of his grocery store in Heidelberg. Subject is very anxious to secure employment with a West. Agency which is concerned with any type of intelligence activity.
