| 3. IMADA learned that the Japanese Government had summoned Vice- Admiral YAMAMOTO | | | | | |
| Yoshio and TATSUMI Eiichi in Nov 1951 to get the views of these two men on rearmament. INADA had previously made repeated assertaions to TATSUMI that the Government should | | | | | |
| create a Rearmament Research office. After learning of the Nov meeting, the existence | | | | | |
| of which YAMAMOTO had disclosed to the Navy clique, INADA once again pressed his | | | | | |
| opinions and suggestions upon TATDUMI, even going so far as to give him a rearmament | | | | | |
| plan which he and HATTORI had drawn up, but apparently was unsuccessful in convincing | | | | | |
| TATSUMI of the need for such an organisation. | | | | | |
