Makarios Cracks Down on EOKA-B

Archbishop Makarios has withdrawn his offer of amnesty to the remnants of General Grivas' Greek Cypriot guerrilla organization (EOKA-E) and ordered the police to arrest some 70 guerrillas still at large. Makarios' amnesty offer three months ago to EOKA-B--now officially outlawed--had not been accepted; in fact, there were recent indications that EOKA-B had returned to guerrilla activity on a small scale. The Archbishop obviously believes that now is the time to try to eliminate the pro-enosis organization, which is currently involved in a leadership struggle. He was doing a good job against EOKA-B while Grivas was still alive and should be more successful now that the movement has been weakened by the death of the leader.
