National Intelligence Daily

Wednesday 13 July 1983

Top Secret

CPAS NID 83-163JX

<sub>Copy</sub> 285

(b)(3)

Approved for Release: 2017/11/17 C05143898

Warning Notice

This Document Not To Be Reproduced Intelligence Sources or Methods Involved (WN)

National Security Information

Unauthorized Disclosure Subject to Criminal Sanctions

Dissemination Control Abbreviations	NOFORN (NF)	Not releasable to foreign nationals
	NOCONTRACT (NC)	Not releasable to contractors or contractor/consultants
	PROPIN (PR)	Caution—proprietary information involved
	ORCON (OC)	Dissemination and extraction of information controlled by originator
	REL	This information has been authorized for release to Foreign government information
	FGI
	WN	WNINTEL—Intelligence sources or methods involved

The National Intelligence Daily is prepared in the Central Intelligence Agency in cooperation with the other US foreign intelligence organizations.

This page is Confidential.

(b)(3)

(b)(3)

Approved for Release: 2017/11/17 C05143898  Top Secret	(b)(3)
Contents
El Salvador: Military Activity	NF
West Germany-El Salvador: Appointment of Ambassador 6
	NR

Top Secret 13 July 1983

(b)(3)

Top Secret

Top Secret

13 July 1983

	_ top secret _
		(b)(3)
		(/(/
•
EL SALVADOR: Military Activity	•
the state of the s
Government forces over the weekend began a major	sweep in northern Chalatenango Department, and they are continu	uina militarv
operations throughout most of the country.		(h)(3)
operations impugnout most of the dountry.		(b)(3)
•
Army spokesmen say several towns along the key N	orthern
Highway already have been retaken.
ingilitary alloady hato book foldaton.
		(b)(1)
		`
The government has announced that the elite Atlaca	atl Battalion has pulled out of Morazan Department and has been rep
airborne unit and another battalion.
and different battamonia		/L\/4\
		(b)(1)
The guerrillas continue to carry out sporadic actions week insurgent forces attacked Nueva Granada in north allegedly killing about 13 local defense troops and captu	ring assorted
weapons and ammunition.		(b)(3)
		•
Manushila Janusia Villalahan handafa	no of the
Meanwhile, Joaquin Villalobos, head of o		(b)(1)
largest guerrilla factions, vowed in a recently broadcast	speech to intensify the war.		(b)(3)
		. , , ,
Comment: The Army has held the tactical initiative	for over a month, overrunning guerrilla base camps and retaking t held by the insurgents. Nevertheless, the guerrillas' loss es generally	(b)(2)
have been light.		(b)(3)
Villalobos's warning indicates the insurgents still pla
back soon. They may take advantage of the withdrawal	of the Atlacatl
Battalion to hit hard in the east.		(b)(3)
	·	` /\ /
	•

Top Secret

(b)(3) (b)(3)

Approved for Release: 2017/11/17 C05143898
					•

_Approved for Release: 2017/11/17 C05143898

Apı	proved for Release:	2017/11/17 C05	143898

Approved for Release: 2017/11/17 C05143898
Approved for Release: 2017/11/17 C05143898

The West German Government has announced its intention to	WEST GERMANY-EL SALVADOR: Appointment of Ambassador
The West German Government has announced its intention to send an ambassador to San Salvador in the near future during former President Duarte's visit to Bonn, but it probably will wait until after the presidential election in El Salvador scheduled for later this year. Since 1980, West Germany has been represented in San Salvador by a chargé d'affaires.  Comment: Waiting until the election would allow the West Germans to claim that the democratic process in El Salvador had reached the point where full diplomatic representation was merited. If Bonn were to send an ambassador now, the government's critics would be more prone to claim that it was supporting a rightwing regime guilty of human rights abuses. In addition, Bonn does not want to move too far ahead of other West European countries on this matter. The government also may resume development aid to El Salvador—frozen since 1980—but any such move almost certainly	WEST GERMANY-EL SALVADOR: Appointment of Ambassador
The West German Government has announced its intention to send an ambassador to San Salvador in the near future during former President Duarte's visit to Bonn, but it probably will wait until after the presidential election in El Salvador scheduled for later this year. Since 1980, West Germany has been represented in San Salvador by a chargé d'affaires.  Comment: Waiting until the election would allow the West Germans to claim that the democratic process in El Salvador had reached the point where full diplomatic representation was merited. If Bonn were to send an ambassador now, the government's critics would be more prone to claim that it was supporting a rightwing regime guilty of human rights abuses. In addition, Bonn does not want to move too far ahead of other West European countries on this matter. The government also may resume development aid to El Salvador—frozen since 1980—but any such move almost certainly	WEST GERMANY-EL SALVADOR: Appointment of Ambassador
The West German Government has announced its intention to send an ambassador to San Salvador in the near future during former President Duarte's visit to Bonn, but it probably will wait until after the presidential election in El Salvador scheduled for later this year. Since 1980, West Germany has been represented in San Salvador by a chargé d'affaires.  Comment: Waiting until the election would allow the West Germans to claim that the democratic process in El Salvador had reached the point where full diplomatic representation was merited. If Bonn were to send an ambassador now, the government's critics would be more prone to claim that it was supporting a rightwing regime guilty of human rights abuses. In addition, Bonn does not want to move too far ahead of other West European countries on this matter. The government also may resume development aid to El Salvador—frozen since 1980—but any such move almost certainly	WEST GERMANY-EL SALVADOR: Appointment of Ambassador
The West German Government has announced its intention to send an ambassador to San Salvador in the near future during former President Duarte's visit to Bonn, but it probably will wait until after the presidential election in El Salvador scheduled for later this year. Since 1980, West Germany has been represented in San Salvador by a chargé d'affaires.  Comment: Waiting until the election would allow the West Germans to claim that the democratic process in El Salvador had reached the point where full diplomatic representation was merited. If Bonn were to send an ambassador now, the government's critics would be more prone to claim that it was supporting a rightwing regime guilty of human rights abuses. In addition, Bonn does not want to move too far ahead of other West European countries on this matter. The government also may resume development aid to El Salvador—frozen since 1980—but any such move almost certainly	WEST GERMANY-EL SALVADOR: Appointment of Ambassador
The West German Government has announced its intention to send an ambassador to San Salvador in the near future during former President Duarte's visit to Bonn, but it probably will wait until after the presidential election in El Salvador scheduled for later this year. Since 1980, West Germany has been represented in San Salvador by a chargé d'affaires.  Comment: Waiting until the election would allow the West Germans to claim that the democratic process in El Salvador had reached the point where full diplomatic representation was merited. If Bonn were to send an ambassador now, the government's critics would be more prone to claim that it was supporting a rightwing regime guilty of human rights abuses. In addition, Bonn does not want to move too far ahead of other West European countries on this matter. The government also may resume development aid to El Salvador—frozen since 1980—but any such move almost certainly	WEST GERMANY-EL SALVADOR: Appointment of Ambassador send an ambassador to San Salvador in the near future during former President Duarte's visit to Bonn, but it probably will wait until after the presidential election in El Salvador scheduled for later this year. Since 1980, West Germany has been represented in San Salvador by a chargé d'affaires.  Comment: Waiting until the election would allow the West Germans to claim that the democratic process in El Salvador had reached the point where full diplomatic representation was merited. If Bonn were to send an ambassador now, the government's critics would be more prone to claim that it was supporting a rightwing regime guilty of human rights abuses. In addition, Bonn does not want to move too far ahead of other West European countries on this matter. The government also may resume development aid to El Salvador—frozen since 1980—but any such move almost certainly	• •
Germans to claim that the democratic process in El Salvador had reached the point where full diplomatic representation was merited. If Bonn were to send an ambassador now, the government's critics would be more prone to claim that it was supporting a rightwing regime guilty of human rights abuses. In addition, Bonn does not want to move too far ahead of other West European countries on this matter. The government also may resume development aid to El Salvador—frozen since 1980—but any such move almost certainly	send an ambassador to San Salvador in the near future during former President Duarte's visit to Bonn, but it probably will wait until after the presidential election in El Salvador scheduled for later this year. Since 1980, West Germany has been represented in San Salvador by a Germans to claim that the democratic process in El Salvador had reached the point where full diplomatic representation was merited. If Bonn were to send an ambassador now, the government's critics would be more prone to claim that it was supporting a rightwing regime guilty of human rights abuses. In addition, Bonn does not want to move too far ahead of other West European countries on this matter. The government also may resume development aid to El Salvador—frozen since 1980—but any such move almost certainly

Top Secret

(b)(3)

(b)(3)

(b)(3)

(b)(3) (b)(3)

Approved for Release: 2017/11/17 C05143898	NR
	INR
	, .
	•
	•
	•
	•
Approved for Release: 2017/11/17 C05143898

Approved for Release: 2017/11/17 C05143898

Approved for Release: 2017/11/17 C05143898	NR

Approved for Release: 2	2017/11/17 C05143898

Top Secret	Approved for Release: 2017/11/17 C05143898	(b)(3)

Top Secret